BLEASE ATTACKS REGIME OF RIVERS AS 'MONKEY TRICK'

Fiery Denunciation Draws Harris Warning That Rules on Personal Privilege Will Be Enforced.

GOVERNOR TO GIVE 3D MESSAGE TODAY

House Votes To Delay Action Indefinitely on Civil Service Proposal.

By The Associated Press.

Representative Blease yesterday denounced Rivers' regime as "monkey-trick administration" and Speaker Harris immediately thereafter warned solons future speeches must conform to rules of house procedure.

The administration was set back sharply when the house postponed action indefinitely on civil service proposal, overriding administration move for delay of only one week.

Governor Rivers prepared third message for delivery to the general assembly today, dealing with tax recommendations and governmental problems.

Governor promised executive action where possible to carry out economy recommendations of house investigating committee.

Speaker Roy Harris warned the house of representatives yesterday he would "strictly enforce" in the future house rules on matters of personal privilege, following another fiery attack on the Rivers administration.

Speaker Harris, an administration stalwart, said he had been lenient in interpreting the rule earlier in the session when time was not at a premium and that most of the speeches "on point of personal privilege" did not conform to that rule.

Representative W. R. Blease, of Brooks county, had just finished the talk in which he denounced the Rivers regime as "the monkey-trick administration" when Speaker Harris ordered the rule read to the legislators and commented that pressing business before the house would necessitate "strict enforcement."

The rule states "questions of privilege shall be, first, those affecting the rights of the house collectively, its safety, dignity, and the integrity of its proceedings; second, the rights, reputation, and conduct of members individually, in their representative capacity only."

Blease was the latest representative to criticize administration activities, asserting the administration had permitted "leaks" in handling financial matters and "we are not going to pass any sales tax or gross receipts tax to take care of any such legislation."

The veteran Brooks county legislator accused the administration of "bringing these teachers on our neck" as a result of failure to meet school pay rolls and told the house money for projects such as the new state office building "should have been kept for the school teachers."

Waving his hand toward the construction work opposite the capitol, he referred to the speech

Locomotive and Eight Cars Piled Up Near Newnan in Spectacular Wreck Fatal to Two

Two crew members died and a third was critically burned in this spectacular derailment of a Central of Georgia freight train five miles west of Newnan yesterday afternoon. The engine and eight cars were smashed. The engineer escaped injury by pulling himself through the window of the teetering locomotive. The flagman, riding in the caboose of the 29-car train, also escaped unhurt.

Hundreds were attracted to the wreck, within sight of the station at Sargent. Tracks were not expected to be cleared before tomorrow. Cause was ascribed to "human error."

Two Killed as Train Hurtles From Track Near Newnan

Third Man Showered With Coals and Steam Is Not Expected to Live; Engineer Makes Miraculous Escape and Helps Rescuers.

Two members of a train crew were killed, another critically injured and a fourth miraculously escaped in a spectacular derailment of a Central of Georgia freight about five miles west of Newnan yesterday afternoon which left the engine, tender and eight cars a tangled mass of wreckage.

Victims of the crash were Robert L. Stevens, 46, conductor, and Richard Hall, 40, negro brakeman. Charles Richardson, 43, negro fireman, was burned severely and is not expected to live.

Stevens and Hall were killed instantly, crushed by the telescoping of the tender and scalded almost beyond recognition. Richardson was rushed to a Newnan hospital. Attendants reported last night there was little chance for him.

G. M. Guber, 50, the engineer, helped volunteers who hurried to the scene, pull his companions from the wreckage of the cab. O. A. Williamson, flagman, who was riding in the caboose, also was unhurt.

Engineer's Story. "I felt the engine go off the rails," Engineer Guber said, "and start bumping along the ties. I put on the brakes and throttled down. Then I reached and grabbed the bar of the awning of the cab to keep from being thrown forward on my face.

"At that moment I felt the engine start going over on the left side. I pulled myself through the cab window on my side and crawled forward. As the engine went over I managed to jump clear.

"The tender telescoped the engine. The others had no chance." The train, which was Central of Georgia No. 29, consisted of 29 freight cars, en route from Griffin to Cedartown.

A few yards north of the Sargent station the locomotive plunged from the track, carrying seven of the freight cars with it. The locomotive turned over on the left, or fireman's side. Stevens and Hall, who were in the cab or on the locomotive's rear

BATTLE ON RELIEF REVIVED BY F. D. R.

President Flings Issue Back to Congress, Calls for 150 Million More.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt flung the relief issue back in the face of congress today with an assertion that unless more money is appropriated for WPA, millions more dependent upon federal assistance may "be stranded" by early summer.

Specifically, he asked for the $150,000,000 which congress, in an economy effort, lopped from his estimates of relief needs for the present fiscal year.

He urged "immediate consideration" of his request, but the two key men in the situation in the house—Chairman Taylor, Democrat, Colorado, of the appropriations committee, and Chairman Woodrum, Democrat, Virginia, of the subcommittee in charge, made it plain that no action would be taken for several weeks.

"I don't know," Woodrum said, "what action the committee will take or whether it will take any. I don't see that the situation has changed, and I have not changed my view that the $725,000,000 we have already appropriated will be enough."

Spending Controversy.

Chairman Adams, Democrat, Colorado, of the corresponding subcommittee in the senate, said that whatever bill is approved by the house will receive "careful study" along with any "new facts" that may be presented. He, too, said that neither the relief situation nor his own views as to what should be done had changed.

Behind the President's request and these statements by the legislators lay the deep seated controversy over the Roosevelt spending policies, and the results of the session's first battle on that issue.

Early last month, Mr. Roosevelt requested $875,000,000 to finance WPA from February 7 to the end of the fiscal year on June 30. The house, with Republicans and economy Democrats in control, reduced the figure to $725,000,000. After a memorable battle, the sen-

VOTE TO IMPEACH JUDGE WOODRUM

Committee Asks Trial by Senate After Charge of an Attempted 'Deal.'

Charges against Judge William Woodrum, of the Ogeechee superior court circuit, will be aired on the floor of the house of representatives as the result of a committee vote last night, acting favorably on a resolution seeking impeachment of the jurist in connection with trial of the widely publicized Charles L. Daughtry murder case.

Should the house adopt the resolution, Judge Woodrum would be tried by the senate, with the house acting as prosecutor.

The motion of Representative DeFoor, of McIntosh county, that the state of the republic committee approve the resolution came immediately after two sworn witnesses testified Judge Woodrum told them he would obtain a directed verdict of acquittal in the trial of Albert Cobb, Savannah lawyer, for Daughtry's murder, if State Senate President John B. Spivey, of Swainsboro, then running for re-election, could be persuaded to help oppose the pending impeachment charges before the general assembly.

The witnesses, P. H. Ricks, of Soperton, and Alonzo Woods, of Swainsboro, said they related the proposition to Spivey late one night and that pajama-clad Spivey turned it down promptly.

"It's dynamite, a powder house," Ricks quoted Spivey as saying. DeFoor's motion came as a surprise, the committee having only an hour or so before voted to give each side in the case two hours for additional testimony. Documentary evidence was to be submitted later.

The committee voted seven to seven on the motion, after quashing efforts to adjourn quickly. That left the decision up to Representative H. B. (Hell Bent) Edwards, chairman.

Edwards, after explaining in detail that he was acquainted with Woods, former representative in the house, voted "aye." He pointed

Georgia Is 4th From Bottom On Spending for Its Schools

Low Allocation Shown as Congress Studies Bill Which Would Give State Millions for Adult Education, Rural Libraries.

Georgia ranked 45th in the nation's 48 states and Atlanta was placed far down on the list of cities in amounts of money spent last year on education per capita, it was disclosed yesterday in figures announced at Washington.

The facts were brought out by Representative William H. Larabee, of Indiana, chairman of the house education committee and author of a bill to bring federal aid for adult education and rural libraries.

Millions for Georgia. Georgia would receive $1,094,835 of federal aid for rural library services and $1,541,190 for adult education in the next six years if the educational aid bill becomes law.

In compiling statistics in connection with the bill, the house education bill found the national average expenditure per active pupil was $74.30. The Atlanta average on the basis of last year, was $62.60.

Only Alabama, Mississippi and Arkansas ranked below Georgia in money spent annually for education. Of the 48 states, 24 spent more than the national average, and 24 spent less.

A study of educational systems in the south shows that Atlanta, on a per-student basis, spends less than Louisville, Richmond or Memphis. Richmond spent $83.35; Louisville $72.05, and Memphis, $66.05.

Collins Favors Bill.

Commenting on the statistics, Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, spoke favorably of the Larabee bill, saying: "If the bill is passed it will have a tremendously wholesome effect on raising educational standards in Georgia. With this additional aid, we could build more school buildings and pay our present teaching staff more adequately."

A spokesman for the state library commission, which, through WPA assistance, has recently extended free library service into many rural sections, said the commission "was watching progress of the bill with interest for it

NO ONE THOUGHT YOU UNFIT, LETTER TO ROBERTS SAYS

Bitterly Denies Glass' Charges That Governor Price of Virginia Controls State Patronage.

'INNOCENT VICTIM,' HIS NOMINEE TOLD

'Not One Syllable Has Been Uttered Against Your Character, Ability'

Text of President Roosevelt's letter to Judge Roberts will be found on page 8.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, striking at the senate's rejection of his nomination of Floyd H. Roberts to be a federal judge in Virginia, said today not a single person had opposed Roberts' confirmation on the ground he was unfit for the post.

Mr. Roosevelt denied the charge by Senator Glass, Democrat, Virginia, who, with Senator Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, said Roberts' nomination was personally objectionable to them, that he had given Governor James H. Price, of Virginia, the veto power over federal patronage for that state.

Referring to a newspaper article sent him by Glass suggesting that Price had been given the veto over federal appointments, the President said he wrote Glass that this was not worth answering "for the very simple reason that no person—no governor, no senator, no member of the administration has at any time had, or ever will have any right of veto over presidential nominations."

"Not Square With Facts." "Every person with common sense knows this," Mr. Roosevelt said.

Glass' statement to the senate judiciary committee about the veto power "does not square with the facts," a letter the President wrote to Roberts declared.

Roosevelt accused the senate of disregarding constitutional procedure in rejecting the nomination. Declaring that no question as to Roberts' fitness was raised, he said the constitution was intended to give the senate the right to reject or confirm appointments "solely

Aycock Bribery Trial Opens Today

Defense Attorney, Charging Impossibility of Obtaining Fair Hearing, Denied Change of Venue

Frank J. Aycock, former city policeman, is scheduled to face a Fulton county jury today on charges of accepting bribes to protect bootleggers in prerepeal days. The case was set definitely for trial yesterday by Superior Court Judge Hugh M. Dorsey after William Schley Howard, defense attorney, failed in an effort to obtain a change of venue.

Howard charged that inflammatory newspaper stories had so prejudiced the jurors in Fulton county that it was impossible to get a fair and impartial trial in the county.

E. E. Andrews, special racket prosecutor under Solicitor General John A. Boykin, answered it was not the fault of the newspapers but the guilt of Howard's clients that made it so difficult to get acquittals.

Cites Bailey-Davis Trial. Howard cited the conviction of R. R. Davis and J. A. Bailey last week as "evidence of the fact that a fair trial cannot be had."

In his argument to Davis-Bailey jury, Howard last week said newspapers "had become so nauseated with the persecution of the police force that they are paying no attention to the trials."

Immediately after the conviction, however, he announced he would seek a change of venue.

After Judge Dorsey overruled the motion, Howard withdrew it and agreed to proceed with the trial.

"Why those men were convicted in defiance of all evidence and on the testimony of convicted criminals," Howard shouted to the court yesterday.

A short clash between Andrews and Howard ensued when Andrews told the court Howard had told him, when the investigation of alleged bribe-taking by police officers was launched, "there are certain crooked policemen who some of my clients have told me about."

"And you've shielded him ever since," Howard retorted.

"You never gave any name," Andrews said, "and you never gave me any evidence."

Under the court order, Aycock's trial will begin at 9 o'clock in the morning, and end at 1 o'clock in the afternoon to permit Howard to represent another client during the afternoon.

Aycock is charged with accepting bribes jointly with G. B. Scoggin, the first policeman to face a jury after the investigation. Scoggin was sentenced to serve two years. His case is now on appeal.

COUNCIL'S PROBES SET TAXI HEARING

Chairman Couch Calls for 'Facts' at Session Tomorrow Night

A public hearing on Atlanta's taxicab service will be held at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night at the city hall, Councilman J. Allen Couch, chairman of a special investigating committee of city council, announced yesterday.

The committee was appointed by Mayor Pro Tem G. Dan Bridges after council adopted a resolution asking the taxicab company to show cause why service should not be improved.

"I want to know all the facts about taxicab service in Atlanta," Couch said. "Anybody who has any suggestions to make or anything to say about the present service should appear before the committee Thursday night."

Other members of the committee are Alderman Ed A. Gilliam and Councilmen Cecil Hester, C. M. (Mac) Bolen and Frank Wilson. The resolution was sponsored in council by Alderman Frank Reynolds after Mayor Hartsfield had submitted it to council.

platform, were hurled under the engine and crushed to death instantly.

Steam and live coals sprayed upon Richardson before he was dragged free.

The engine had plowed five feet into a mud bank 100 yards down the track from a switch. Eight loaded cars jammed into a 40-foot pile behind it, and others were spread across the rails.

Williamson was of the opinion that the derailment was caused by a damaged switch, apparently split by another freight train which had passed but a few minutes before.

H. D. Pollard, receiver for the railroad at Savannah, in a statement last night, ascribed the wreck to "human error."

Pollard said: "Northbound freight train No. 29 was on the Cedartown district near Sargent. Southbound freight train No. 38 was dragging a brake beam. Train No. 38 passed No. 29 near Sargent, and the crew of the latter was warned to exercise care because of possible damage to the track or switches from the dragging brake beam."

"For some reason the warning was disregarded. The brake beam had opened a switch, and train No. 29 split the switch and was derailed at Sargent."

R. A. Brim, chief dispatcher of the Columbus division, said at his office a complete investigation would be made.

Officials ordered wrecking trains from Cedartown and Columbus to clear the right of way and to aid in determining the precise facts.

The body of Conductor Stevens was taken to Carrollton. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ida Stevens; a son, R. L. Stevens Jr., of Carrollton; four sisters, Mrs. Tom Gables and Mrs. J. L. Webb, of Carrollton, Mrs. Claud Robertson, of Gulfport, Miss., and Mrs. McElroy, of Jacksonville, and seven brothers, J. H. and Clyde Stevens, of Carrollton; J. W. and Hugh Stevens, of Macon; Bill Stevens, of Jacksonville; Roy Stevens, of Rockmart, and T. Y. Stevens, who lives in Alabama.

All of the crew members lived in Cedartown.

S. C. HOUSE VOTES AGAINST LABOR LAW

Refuses To Extend 40-Hour Week for Textile Industry

COLUMBIA, S. C., Feb. 7.—(UP)—The South Carolina house today refused to extend the time of the 40-hour week for the textile industry. The law will expire in May.

The bill proposing its extension would have lengthened the period to October, 1940.

A resolution directing the state planning board to study the advisability of creating larger tax units by consolidation of counties was introduced in the house.

BUDGET OF N. C. THROWN OFF BALANCE

RALEIGH, N. C., Feb. 7.—(AP)—North Carolina's budget for the 1939-41 biennium was thrown out of balance today when legislative representatives rejected a proposed tax on "basic" building materials, and increased the recommended appropriation for the Greater University of North Carolina.

The advisory budget commission, which drafted the $134,514,899 tax-spending program, had counted on the building materials levy to net approximately $500,000 a year. Likewise, the commission had planned to reduce the appropriation of the greater university, but to offset the loss by raising tuition by about $50 a year.

The administration exerted its full strength only once during the session, to pass down an amendment designed to exempt from the depot petroleum tax those service stations buying in carload lots for retail sales only. Tax Commissioner Estes Kefauver estimated such an exemption would cost the state $80,000 annually in revenue.

TENNESSEE HOUSE PASSES FUND BILL

NASHVILLE, Feb. 7.—(AP)—An administration-controlled house of representatives passed today Governor Cooper's revenue bill estimated to yield $200,000 more annually than the $2,354,000 received last year.

The administration exerted its full strength only once during the session, to pass down an amendment designed to exempt from the depot petroleum tax those service stations buying in carload lots for retail sales only. Tax Commissioner Estes Kefauver estimated such an exemption would cost the state $80,000 annually in revenue.

ARKANSANS VOTE LICENSE REDUCTION

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Dispensing with the formality of speech making, the Arkansas house passed without a dissenting vote today a senate bill to reduce the price of automobile licenses on a sliding scale.

On trucks and trailers of between one and 1.5 tons capacity the license would be $6 less than now collected. On trucks between one-half ton and a ton the tags would be $5 less. The reduction for trucks of less than a half ton would be a $4 cut.

Passenger car plates now costing $15 or more would be sold for $5 less. Those now selling for between $12 and $15 would be $4 cheaper. Vehicles paying between $8 and $12 would get $3 cut. Those now paying less than $8 would get a $2 reduction.

The house in a resolution asked southern legislators to seek adoption of similar legislation.

The resolution said southern cotton farmers had been reduced to a "fragile financial condition" by trade barriers, discriminating freight rates, the tariff, world economic conditions and competition from foreign growers.

ONE-MAN CONTROL OF FINANCES VOTED

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Feb. 7.—(AP)—The Alabama house passed, 92 to 7, today a measure to establish a finance department combining state fiscal agencies under one-man management, while the senate gave unanimous approval to a bill allowing Governor Frank M. Dixon and department heads to fix salaries of subordinates up to $6,000 annually.

Debate, sometimes bitter, prevailed more than four hours in the senate over a bill to establish a "merit system" for election of state employees and adjournment until Thursday was taken before a final vote was reached on the measure as a whole.

Representative L. H. Ellis, of Shelby, sought unsuccessfully to eliminate sections of the finance department bill which would require cities and counties as well as boards of educational and eleemosynary institutions to report expenditures, and allow the finance director to take a hand in administration in event of bond defaults.

Five Hurt as Car Fails To Make Curve

This car left the road on a curve yesterday near Stone Mountain and spilled its six occupants on a grassy embankment as it turned over three times. O. E. Stephens, of Stone Mountain, demonstrates how part of the top of the 1937 sedan was scraped completely off as the car overturned. Witnesses reported that the automobile was traveling at about 70 miles an hour.

City Will Add $34,788 to WPA's $103,472; Other Projects Okayed.

Allotment of $103,472 of federal funds for the construction of a new airport three and one-half miles southwest of Albany was announced yesterday by the state office of the Works Progress Administration.

The federal funds will be supplemented with $34,788, provided by the city of Albany.

Present plans call for a modern airport satisfactory for air-mail and commercial services. The landing area will be triangular in shape, with runways 5,300, 4,260 and 4,640 feet in length. The field will be lighted and warm-up strips paved. A hangar will be constructed.

The location and total cost of other WPA projects authorized yesterday are:

TURNER PALS GET
100 YEARS EACH

Judge Sees Death in Chair for Ellis J. Vine and Charles Bryant.

Ellis J. Vine, 34, and Charles Bryant, 20, long-term convicts and proteges of Forrest Turner, desperado and escape artist, yesterday got another 100 years each added to their sentences.

Judge Paul S. Etheridge, of Fulton county superior court, waived his right under the law to sentence them to the electric chair when they pleaded guilty to five new charges of robbery by force. He, however, gave them a lecture, warned them they are headed in that direction, turned soother and predicted their end in the chair.

Early in January, Turner released both men from the Cumming prison camp after posing as a lawyer and then throwing a pistol in the faces of guards.

Bryant and Vine are said to have come to Atlanta on the night of January 9 and staged five hold-ups in rapid succession. "I can look at you two and see that you are bad actors, determined to continue a life of crime if given a chance," Judge Etheridge said. "I am sure you will escape again if you can, but I warn you that while I am not sending you to the electric chair now, that I believe it will be your end. The 100 years I now impose shall follow all other sentences now charged against you."

Harry Driver Gregory and James Charles Driver were given from eight to 15 years on robbery charges after their conviction in the court.

Baby Among Occupants
Hurled From Machine
Reported To Have Been Traveling at Fast Speed.

Five persons, including a 3-year-old girl, were injured, one of them seriously, about 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the car in which they were riding turned over three times in failing to make a curve on Memorial drive, near Stone Mountain.

Occupants were hurled from the car which witnesses said was traveling at about 70 miles an hour when it left the road.

The injured were taken to Emory University hospital. They were listed as Mrs. Ellen Bradford, 22, driver of the machine; Howard Williams, 30; Mrs. Jessie Powell, 18; Roy Wade, 25, and Carolyn Bradford, 3, Mrs. Bradford's daughter. All are residents of Stone Mountain.

Claude Owens, of Stone Mountain, another passenger, was not injured in the wreck, and disappeared before police arrived at the scene, witnesses told officers.

Mrs. Bradford, the most seriously hurt, suffered chest injuries and a possible spinal fracture. Wade's left leg was broken between his knee and hip. The little girl was only slightly hurt, but was kept in the hospital for observation. Other occupants of the car were discharged after receiving treatment for minor injuries.

Witnesses told Police Chief J. T. Dailey the car sped toward a curve but failed to turn, ran on the shoulder of the road for almost 200 feet and then overturned three times down a slight embankment.

The vehicle was badly wrecked, but left the scene under its own power.

TENS of Prevention

WHEN you see those interesting big gray-green Southern Bell trucks rolling along, you're likely to think they are going to the scene of some break in the telephone lines. Breaks ARE repaired quickly, day or night, but merely repairing breaks after they occur wouldn't provide the kind of telephone service you're entitled to. It is also necessary to prevent interruptions to your vital telephone service. This is done by constant checking—replacing weak units—reconstructing in accordance with new knowledge and materials—maintaining unceasing vigilance over the long distance lines to locate and correct faults before they become serious. The number of "troubles" on Southern Bell lines has been reduced two-thirds in ten years, by using such "tons of prevention", as well as "tons of cure". These "tons" of prevention are one part of the Bell System's constant effort to insure for you a constantly improving telephone service that is efficient—dependable—economical.

National Lutheran Leader Arrives for Synod Opening

Criticism of Church Is Blamed on Sham by Dr. W. H. Greever.

Shams and hypocrites are responsible for most of the criticism leveled at the church of today, Dr. Walton H. Greever, of New York, secretary of the United Lutheran Church in America, declared yesterday as he arrived in Atlanta for the opening of the seventy-ninth annual session of the Lutheran Synod of Georgia and Alabama at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer on Peachtree street.

"The church is being attacked as it has not been in many years," he said, "but at the same time it is more aware of its responsibilities than ever before."

Unity to Fore.
The soft-spoken man, who talks philosophically while he smokes his pipe and gazes out the window, said efforts to unite all Christians are especially pronounced today.

"Religion is a vital force," he said, "and more thought is being given to its essential meaning. Men everywhere are interested in the genuine article. It is permeating social life in a silent way. Why, even the nonreligious societies get their ideas from the Christian religion."

Dr. Greever sees no reason why there should be any clash between capital and labor. To him both are necessary and both should be welded together with Christian brotherhood and stewardship.

"Italy and Germany are both operating with capital, but it is managed by dictators," he asserted. "We are operating with capital in this country but there is more of a tendency for it to be managed by the federal government. That's what we must fight against."

Foggy Thinking.

"I think there is a great deal of superficial and foggy thinking on the part of spokesmen for both sides," he continued. "There is no ground for any conflict and there wouldn't be if it were not for selfishness. There isn't anything wrong in capital any more than there is in labor. We've got to work—that's labor—and we've got to have capital."

The clergyman thinks the church should not surrender the field of social service to civic agencies, but should continue to guard the physical welfare of its dependents by maintaining hospitals and homes of various kinds. "Many persons think it is the duty of the state to attend to these duties and that Christian workers should be sent into the homes only on certain occasions," he said. "But in this way no Christian atmosphere is created."

Not Losing Ground.

"One of the most bitterly contested questions today is whether the church is losing ground in the field of education," Dr. Greever said. He doubts that it is, since there is a world-wide movement for Christian education and a wider realization of the place of religion in secular institutions.

Approximately 50 ministers and lay leaders attended the opening session of the synod last night. Dr. H. J. Black, pastor of St. Paul's church at Savannah, and president of the synod, delivered the opening sermon. His subject was "The Workmen and Their Work." Dr. W. A. Reiser, pastor of the Church of the Resurrection at Augusta, also took part in the service. Business sessions will begin today with reports of officers. Proposed changes in the constitution are scheduled for discussion tomorrow.

STATE RANKS 45TH IN SCHOOL SPENDING

More Pupils Here.

During the last school year Atlanta spent $3,512,249 for the education of 56,097 students. In contrast, Louisville spent $3,535,236 for the education of 49,065 students; Richmond, $2,840,271 for the education of 34,075 students, and Memphis, $2,426,176 for the education of 36,728 students.

Look at the figures from another angle. On a per capita basis Atlanta's expenditures were a little higher. They were $12.54, while those of Memphis were $9.27, Richmond, $15.36, and Louisville, $11.13.

However, if the $971,192 expended by Louisville during the year for interest payments and retirement of her $10,986,400 bonded debt is considered, the per capita costs rise to $14.19 and the per-student costs to $91.84.

Although debt service expenditures by Memphis schools are not available, the school debt in that city amounts to $5,437,000. Naturally, this would add considerably to the costs of education.

In Atlanta the school debt amounted to only $4,277,500 on December 31, 1938. Officials pointed out the debt service for the city last year was $478,226. The total cost per student, including debt service, was $71.15.

Take a glance at the school costs as compared with gross municipal income from all sources. Atlanta spends 30.1 per cent of its total city income upon its public school system, or 34.77 per cent, including debt service. Louisville spends 27.1 per cent, or 34.6 per cent, if debt service is included; Memphis, 32.5 per cent, or 37.8 including debt service.

Atlanta's teachers seem to be doing their part, for a study shows her 1,405 teachers carry an average "teaching load" of 40. Louisville's 1,615 teachers have a load of 30.3; Richmond's 1,101 a load of 30.9, and Memphis' 2,090, a load of 33.7.

In all of the four cities mentioned, the schools have definitely ear-marked revenues, and their operation, generally speaking, is separate from other municipal activities.

Under Atlanta's municipal charter the schools are entitled to 30 per cent of the city's gross revenue from whatever source derived. Even the gross revenue of the Atlanta water works, from which the schools derived $701,000 during the last year, is covered in this provision.

Comptroller B. Graham West says the actual proportion of gross revenue devoted to education was 34.77 per cent, since the school debt service is extra.

The Atlanta school board must submit a school budget to the mayor, but in the event of a veto the board may override by a two-thirds vote. The mayor only last week signed the budget for 1939. In Louisville, the tax limit for public school purposes is $1 over and above the $1.50 "general purposes" limitation. In the last school year, however, the school levy was 67 cents, which produced $2,188,383 of current taxes, $178,000 of back taxes and $309,981 of franchise taxes. It is pointed out in a recent survey. These, together with a state grant of $746,921, a small cash surplus and various minor revenues, made up the total school income.

In Richmond, an ordinance provides that 75 cents of the total tax rate must be used for school purposes, the survey shows. The schools also received last year $306,891 from the state of Virginia, and about $450,000 of other income, including $119,000 of federal grants classed as "capital outlay."

The Memphis schools also received the income from a mandatory tax levy of 65 cents. They received, in addition, 50 per cent of a 36-cent county school tax levy, which last year produced $580,496. The state grant was approximately $4 per student and totaled $112,725.

All of these comparisons indicate that Atlanta's school system ranks well in the south. And when Mr. and Mrs. Atlanta become disgruntled about taxes, they can be assured that little Johnny or Betty are getting their money's worth in the schoolroom.

First Lady Defies Her Nazi Readers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(UP)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today that she will continue to write as she pleases despite criticism by the semi-official Nazi press which, she added, surprised her because she believed "their whole attitude was that women didn't count."

She referred only briefly to an article in last Sunday's issue of the Berlin "Lokal-Anzeiger" which suggested that "one should ask her to keep her pen away from things of which she is ignorant." The article referred to her defense of the sale of American planes to France.

wrote the Larrabee bill, were announced yesterday at Washington: For rural library services: 1939-1940, $72,989; 1940-41, $145,978; 1941-1942 and each of the three succeeding years, $218,967. For adult education: 1939-1940, $102,746; 1940-1941, $205,492; 1941-1942 and each of the three succeeding years, $308,238.

In addition to these grants, which would be contingent upon adoption of co-operative legislation by the state, Georgia would receive federal aid for advancement of public elementary and secondary schools, for preparation of teachers, for school building construction, and for administration of its State Department of Education.

Sharpsteen Stresses Trump Play At Bridge School Sessions Today

Expert instruction in the play of the hand as declarer, when the contract is a suit bid, together with a simplified program of tactics for defense to follow, will headline today's three sessions of The Constitution Bridge School in the Atlanta Woman's Club. Classes will meet at 10:30 a. m., 2:30 and 8 p. m. in the main ballroom of the club.

For the benefit of all types of players, Harold Sharpsteen, The Constitution's bridge expert, will explain step by step exactly how the finished play sets about to play his hand when the contract is in a trump suit. He will lay particular stress on the problems of trump management, explaining just when trumps should be drawn at once and when the lead of trumps should be postponed.

Among other angles of play to be discussed today will be when and how to create trump entries to dummy, how to discard losers, when the defer trump leads, how to lead against suit contracts with no bid from partner, returning partner's lead against suit bids, and how both declarer and defender establish cross-ruffing situations.

All lessons in The Constitution series open with an illustrated blackboard lecture by Mr. Sharpsteen and at today's classes he will present a full chart of the mechanics and tactics of both declarer and the adversaries in trump play. Supervised playing instruction will follow the regular lesson period with both Mr. and Mrs. Sharpsteen in personal attendance to give aid to those desiring assistance in bidding, leads and plays.

Drug Helps Lift Veil From Mind Of Man Who Disappeared Here

'Mister X' for Eight Years Chats With Brother and Sister,
But Physician Believes Mental Blankness
Will Return.

JACKSON, Miss., Feb. 7.—(UP)—Wrinkled, bald "Mister X" this state's most famous "I don't remember" case, tonight was revealed as William H. Lawrence, a Birmingham, Ala., insurance agent.

The 70-year-old man, whose mental link with the past was broken mysteriously in Atlanta eight years ago, was identified by his brother, Ben H. Lawrence, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., and sister, Mrs. J. P. Haley, of Marion, Ala. He disappeared from the Terminal hotel, destroyed by fire last year. "Mister X" recited his personal history from his childhood to 1930, while under influence of a treatment involving suggestion and use of amylol, to Dr. F. A. Donaldson and his brother and sister. The account tallied in detail with the story Ben Lawrence and Mrs. Haley previously had told.

When Lawrence recovered from effects of the drug, Donaldson said, there was a possibility he would remember himself as William H. Lawrence, member of a family of 10 boys and five girls. The physician believed, however, that the blankness of amnesia would return and "Mister X" would not know who he is, despite presence and assurances of relatives.

Ben Lawrence and Mrs. Haley were positive in their identification. They brought a family group picture taken in 1929 showing "Mister X" sitting by Mrs. Haley. The amnesia victim corroborated the identification of the picture while he was under influence of the drug.

A pictorial story in a newspaper first led members of the Lawrence family to believe the amnesia victim was their relative. They listened to him on a national radio broadcast, and the description fitted that of William H. Lawrence.

"Mister X" was picked up while he was sitting on a street curb. Since then he had puttered in the flower garden of the Mississippi State hospital.

BATTLE ON RELIEF REVIVED BY F. D. R.

ate approved the lower appropriation by a single vote. But, in order to obtain its bare senate majority, the economy bloc had been forced to make two concessions: That not more than 5 per cent of the WPA workers should be dropped during the cold weather months of February and March, and that if an emergency arose, the President could ask for more funds.

This chief executive chose to do today, three days after signing the $725,000,000 bill. He would have vetoed that measure, "on the ground of its inadequacy to meet human need," he said, had it not been for its prohibition against excessive cuts in the WPA rolls before April 1.

After figuring in requirements for the maintenance of pay roll reserves, he said the $725,000,000 appropriation is the net total of what the WPA has available to run it from February 1 to June 30. It had been decided, he said, that there should be no reduction in the present number of relief recipients, 3,000,000, before April 1. Thus, he added, an expenditure of $368,000,000 would be necessary before April 1, leaving $359,000,000 for the months of April, May and June. The cost of work relief he placed at $61 monthly per worker.

There were, he said, two methods of spreading the $359,000,000 remainder over the time months—dropping 1,000,000 relief workers on April 1, or a week-by-week reduction which would entail dropping more than 1,500,000 eventually. If "proper reserves" were maintained in connection with the latter method, he said, the cut would be nearly 2,000,000.

RACING BILL WINS COMMITTEE OKAY

Vote Is 14 to 11; Co-Author
Estimate $500,000 Annual Revenue.

Legalized pari-mutuel betting on horse and dog races was favored by the agricultural committee No. 1 of the house of representatives by a vote of 14 to 11 last night. The committee's action came after a thorough airing of views of supporters and opponents of the measure, nearly a dozen speakers delivering brief talks for and against the bill.

Representative DeFoor, of McIntosh, co-author of the bill, explained its provisions for taxation and regulation of racing in each county so voting in a referendum. The bill sets up a racing commission of three men to be appointed by the Governor, and provides for the state to receive 3 per cent of the gross wagers, to be distributed equally among the counties for county operation.

Representative DeFoor estimated the bill would bring perhaps $500,000 in revenue to the state, and said betting now goes on in Georgia but the state received no revenue from it.

CLOSED?

The police department has declared "closed" the investigation of the Ku Klux Klan's Saturday night initiation "kidnapings" on the streets of Atlanta.

The Klan itself, with magnanimous modesty, assures the police and the citizens the Klan will not again frighten the people.

Perhaps this is all that may be expected. There are, however, many citizens of Atlanta who wonder why the city has not had for many, many years an ordinance prohibiting the appearance of masked men. There are even more citizens who wonder why the police, who could not have known the "kidnapings" were an initiation unless they themselves were privy to the plans, were so casual in their interest. There are more citizens who very properly fear the way has been opened for other groups to don robes and masks and to stage real kidnappings or commit acts of violence while police look on with calm assurance that all is well. They assumed enormous responsibility for permitting the Klan to act as it did. There is no place for the Klan and no reason for its existence. To permit it to flout public opinion and to advertise the city over the nation in such a fashion remains an outrage. The police may have closed the case. The thinking people have not.

THAT DELIBERATE LIE

The accusation that certain newspaper owners manufactured a "deliberate lie" when they quoted the President as saying France was now the American frontier, could stand a bit of qualifying by the White House.

It is an old, accepted and safe political custom to besmear the opposition without pointing out the culprit by name. But to give the lie to the newspapers, as a whole, for publishing a generally accepted viewpoint—a viewpoint which the President, himself, by inference, has seemingly endeavored to convince the people—has cast a shadow upon the integrity of the press.

It is not to be doubted that the phrase—deliberate lie—was unhappily selected and badly misapplied. The President, himself, in all probability knows that few, if any, newspaper owners would, or could, be guilty of manufacturing a deliberate falsehood. So, in fairness to the nation's more than 2,000 newspapers, as well as to the millions of readers throughout the country who daily rely upon their integrity, the guilty party or parties should be identified.

If the President chooses to be reticent in naming the accused, then he should be more hesitant, in the future, when tempted to hurl such an accusation. The press, as a whole, has been unjustly defamed repeatedly by authoritative spokesmen assertedly speaking the views of the White House. The present incident, unless clarified, gives substance to the suspicion that some previous utterances had sanction there.

If the source from which said lie emanated is continued to be kept secret, then congress should not be backward in taking a hand in the matter. The time has come when flippant and unfounded charges, such as "the bought press" or the "kept newspapers"—reflecting on the integrity of the press in general—should be delved into for the facts.

It would be unfair to condemn a city, or a state, or a nation for the crimes of one man. But no more unfair than casting a shadow upon the entire press of the nation by withholding the name, or names, of a known offender against the most important section of the recognized code of all good newspapers—if there was one in this particular instance.

If the world is becoming smaller, how come we can mislay a war like the one in China?

PROMISES ARE RELATIVE

When Prime Minister Chamberlain obtained from Premier Mussolini a pledge that he would withdraw Italian troops from Spain at the conclusion of the civil war, it was felt by many that this promise would never be kept. Mr. Chamberlain, however, has maintained that Mussolini would honor his word, and Anglo-Italian relations have been conducted on that basis since last April.

Indeed, there has been little choice on the part of Mr. Chamberlain. Actually, the promise has been better than nothing at all. The only other procedure would have been to permit France to export equipment and supplies to the Loyalists, and this, in turn, would have undoubtedly led to further Italian intervention and a full-fledged international war on Spanish soil. The Prime Minister chose the other path, although the chance might have been. If Il Duce keeps that promise, all will be well—relatively speaking.

But the declaration Sunday of Virginio Gayda, Rome journals, who speaks for the premier, that Italian troops may remain in Spain until Insurgents complete their political domination as well as their military control rings ominously. It may be, however, exactly the maneuver which Britain and France want.

Later dispatches quote Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano as telling Lord Perth, the British ambassador, that Gayda on this occasion did not speak with an authoritative voice. This is a rather futile denial. The Italian press in general and the Voce d'Italia, in which Gayda wrote, in particular, does not print matter which does not have the approval of the government.

The stand of the British government in its demands that Italian troops be immediately withdrawn from Spain in the event of a truce, would indicate the grain of salt with which they took the denial.

There is deep significance in Gayda's statement that "new pressure and diplomatic intervention" is being planned against the Insurgents that might intervene between Franco's military victory and his political victory, and that Italian soldiers could not be withdrawn until there was "renunciation of every other undue, effective, political intervention." This constitutes, reading between the lines, a direct threat to Franco designed to block the Insurgent leader from accepting the financial and moral aid of Great Britain and France in rebuilding Spain from the chaos which will remain when hostilities are ended. This help would result, of course, in extension of Anglo-French influence. Gayda is, in effect, telling Franco that Italy has been the greatest factor in winning the war—the outcome of which is almost certain now—and that he must remain under the domination of the Fascist axis.

Recalling the instances of clashes between Spanish Insurgents and the Italian invaders, it is not difficult to envisage the distinct lack of popularity for this continued intervention among the Spanish troops and the Spanish people. There is the distinct possibility that any attempt of Italian troops to remain on the Iberian peninsula after the conclusion of hostilities will lead to armed clashes that neither side will be able to control. In that event, Italy will be faced with another period of disastrous warfare for which the country is in no wise prepared.

The silence of Mussolini and Hitler after a build-up for colonial demands is deeply significant in this light. England may be winning the war after all.

ALL IN THE VIEWPOINT

Mr. Webster some many years ago compiled a dictionary in which he defined nudity as a condition, or being, of nakedness. The words are paired as closely as the correlatives, either/or. One who is nude, is naked. One who is naked is perforce nude.

St. Louis, however, is being treated to an argument which is predicated upon a distinction in the usage of the words, synonymous though they might have been to Mr. Webster and his successor experts. Thomas Benton, who is one of the better American artists, has painted the "Susanna and the Elders" incident from the Apocrypha and the Douay version of the Bible. Benton transferred the story to the Ozarks, gave Susanna red fingernails, high-heeled slippers and a spot on a creek bank.

It seems to a St. Louis evangelist that, while Susanna in an earlier version might have been artistically nude, the modern Susanna with tinted nails and waved hair "is just stark naked." The museum hanging the picture is to be the target of a protest parade, with all the trimmings. Mr. Benton finds the criticism "funny as hell," a viewpoint with which many will agree.

But in the meantime, the evangelist gets a lot of publicity, the painting will attract enormous crowds of curious citizens of the fair city of St. Louis and surrounding parts, and Susanna remains nude—or naked. It's all in the viewpoint.

Editorial of the Day

IMPOSSIBLE

(From The Baltimore Sun.)

In one sense, Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels is indisputably a man of high aspirations. His newspaper, Der Angriff, has offered prizes for jokes, obviously in an effort to prove that there is something funnier in the world than the Nazis. A man who thinks that can be proved is obviously a man with immense confidence in the capacity of the German rulers.

The worst of it is that Dr. Goebbels himself has almost paralyzed the jokesmiths by setting them a standard that it is well-nigh impossible for them to surpass. A pair of luckless comedians, who were so ill-advised as to make wisecracks at the expense of the government, were expelled by Dr. Goebbels from the Riche's culture chamber, which means that they are driven from the stage.

This is much as if President Roosevelt had had George M. Cohan driven from the American stage in revenge for Cohan's participation in "Td Ratter Be Right." Such an act would have made Roosevelt unquestionably the joke of the century. Just such an act Goebbels has performed. Here, then, is one of the supreme comic characters of the age offering prizes for jokes that are funnier than he is; and if there is a humorist in Germany—or in all the world—who can beat then Aristophanes, Rabelais, Cervantes and Swift should bow to the ground and acknowledge their master.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

"FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Apparently what the President's military affairs committee was that the "first line of American defense." Those are the words he is remembered as using, and even if senators are poor reporters, they are words which the President and his advisers have used on other occasions.

It can easily be understood how a not too accurately minded senator transformed the phrase into "the American frontier," with most unhappy consequences both to the President and the press. Ordinarily, the distinction between "the first line of American defense" and "the American frontier" would only interest half-splitters. But in this case it is vastly important, for it holds the key to the foreign policy which the President has been quietly pursuing.

The difference between a "frontier" and a "first line of defense" is quite simply that you have to defend a frontier, while you are defended by a first line of defense. Putting it a different way, one means fighting ourselves, while the other means letting our friends fight for us. And even a child, or an isolationist senator with one eye on the press gallery and the other on 1940, can see that, in resisting the onward march of Fascism, the European democracies will be fighting America's battles. Indeed, the President's statement to the senate military affairs committee was no more than a statement of obvious fact.

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY

The problem of our foreign policy is a desperately pressing one, for official reports from Europe indicate that the situation there is near the point of explosion. The picture is more confused, but the atmosphere is no different from that in the dark weeks before Munich. And this time, it is thought, England and France will either have to fight or curl up for good. Some of this the President also indicated to the senators. Indeed, he has expressed the gloomiest forebodings to every recent White House visitor with whom he has discussed foreign affairs.

The trouble with our foreign policy is that it has suffered from split personality. In congress have been the isolationists, shrinking almost hysterically from contact with other nations, and even to consider the consequences to the United States of a world jointly dominated by Germany, Italy and Japan. And in the White House has been the President, deeply conscious of the consequences of such a world, anxious above all things to avert it.

Believing that by strengthening "the first line of American defense" he could accomplish his object without bringing this country to war, he has risked a quiet use of his powers. The issue was really drawn in Asia, where China's relationship to us is the same as that of the European democracies. The President's first effort was the agreement to purchase Chinese silver, concluded in spite of advice from State Department officials that it might mean war with Japan, with no other purpose than to supply the Chinese with funds to buy armaments. The Chinese loan, the sale of American airplanes to France and many other incidents fall into the same class.

Before the isolationist senators start screaming their heads off, they had best remember that, in one instance, that of the Haitian loan, nothing but the policy of the President's present course, the complete frankness in foreign affairs is impossible. The President cannot say publicly that Italy and Germany are our enemies, that Italy will soon move in the Mediterranean and that Germany will support her in the hope of snatching colonies from the imbroglio, and that we had best help England and France to arm as fast as we can. On the other hand, he can say publicly what he thinks privately, that the European democracies and China are "the first lines of American defense." Then probably the realism of the American people can be relied on. Then, at least, the issue will be thought through instead of bellowed through.

IN PUBLIC AND PRIVATE

The question of the method of the President's policy remains. It cannot be doubted that he has been less than frank. Of course, complete frankness in foreign affairs is impossible. The President cannot say publicly that Italy and Germany are our enemies, that Italy will soon move in the Mediterranean and that Germany will support her in the hope of snatching colonies from the imbroglio, and that we had best help England and France to arm as fast as we can. On the other hand, he can say publicly what he thinks privately, that the European democracies and China are "the first lines of American defense." Then probably the realism of the American people can be relied on. Then, at least, the issue will be thought through instead of bellowed through.

The Idea

In Washington.

Having arrived in Washington for the purpose of a look around and considerable listening during the next few days, your old column perpetuator is ready with the first report. Spent Monday at the capitol, meeting and hobnobbing with all sorts and kinds of senators and representatives. Was in the senate press gallery when the vote was taken on confirming the nomination to a federal judgeship, in Virginia, of that man Roberts. If you read your news columns lately, you may know that the President had named Roberts for the post, but both the Virginia senators, Glass and Byrd, said he was "personally obnoxious" to them.

When the senate got the report of its committee, they voted 72 to 9 against confirmation. Quite a slap for the President, but more a note of supporting their fellow senators from Virginia. Re-velations anticipated from the White House.

Had lunch in the house restaurant, with old Doc Townsend of "200 every month" pension notoriety at the next table. And J. Ham Lewis, pink whiskers and all, facing me.

That Camp

Organization.

One of the chief items of conversation in the lobbies and cloakrooms is that new organization in Georgia, created by Lawrence Camp and his crowd and self-styled as the Democratic "Council" of the state.

Everybody asks "what's behind it," but I found that by keeping quiet the questioner would soon tell what he thinks is behind it. And the consensus seems to be that it is a preliminary move to an attempt to swing the Georgia delegation, in 1940, to Roosevelt for a third term.

Mebbe so. Incidentally, the talk of a third term is strong here. They all say that no one can form any opinions on the 1940 nominations until the President makes his desires known. If he wants the nomination, they say, he'll get it, regardless of the no third term precedent. And, once nominated, they say he'll probably be elected.

Understand that is just a report of all the conversations I've heard in the last few hours. I'm not vouching for anything. Just telling what I hear.

The Georgia

Delegation.

Georgia seems to be particularly well represented at this session. Talked with a majority of them.

Bob Ranspess, Steve Pace, Eugene Cox, Hugh Peterson, Ben Gibbs, Carl Vinson. Malcolm Tarver was in a committee meeting. And I'll find the others tomorrow.

Talked briefly with Senator George on the senate floor after adjournment, but Senator Russell got away too quickly. They're both at the hotel where I'm living for the week, however, and expect to contact them there.

That's enough for one day on the state of the nation and its Georgia contents.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

The third world missionary conference was held at Tambaram, India, last December, and has come to be known as the Madras conference. It was the first of the preparation for the world gathering were made at Madras. The first such conference was held in Edinburgh, and the second at Jerusalem.

These three world missionary conferences have been held under the auspices of the International Missionary Council. Dr. John R. Mott presided. Four hundred and seventy delegates, representing 70 nations, and all the great bodies of Christendom, except the Roman Catholic church, attended.

Dr. Mott, who for 50 years has gone up and down the earth in an impassioned evangel of the cross, quoted two Scriptures at the opening session:

"I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life," (John 14:6), and, "I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me," (John 12:32).

"To gether," said Dr. Mott, "we must try to discover the will of God, and the next step in its realization." Going further with this central thought, the conference findings declared, "The kingdom of God is within history, and yet it is beyond history. We cannot identify the kingdom of God with a particular system, either the status quo or any revolutionary system we desire to bring about. If any of the panaceas offered to man were realized, even in their pure form, it would not be the kingdom of God. The kingdom of God would still judge it, for the kingdom is the ultimate order; all else is relative. The kingdom of God is both present and future; both a growth and a final consummation of God; both acceptance and action; a gift and a task. We work for it, and we wait for it. It must judge, condemn and fearlessly declare the implications of the Gospel when the existing order is contrary to the will of God for His children."

Notable personalities attended the conference, including Kagawa of Japan, Azariah of India, Koo of China, and Chen and Wu of China. Dr. Charles S. Detweiler, writing in The Watchman-Examiner of the conference, says, "If I were to sum up in one word the result of the days just ended, I would say that it was a fresh appreciation of the significance of the church of Jesus Christ and its place in the missionary enterprise. There has not been in modern times a conference like it for the number and caliber of the delegates from the young churches. It was a great fellowship, whose roots are in God."

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

President Stepped N E W

On an Idle Rake Feb. 7.—

Our President stepped on a rake last week, and the handle hopped up and hit him in the eye. He then blamed the press for leaving the rake lying around. But, hell, he was the one who left that rake there your own self.

It was Mr. Roosevelt who called the military affairs committee of the senate for a conference on national defense and who said whatever he did say. As to whether he attempted to impose secrecy on the meeting, it is plain that at best, he bailed up the understanding, because some senators understood that they were so pledged. The President later denied that there had been a blanket pledge, but Senator Nye, for one, said he considered himself bound to silence. The fact is that some senators obviously fudged a little around the edges, giving Washington reporters information which rattled the windows at home and abroad, involving a question of confidence between those senators and the President. There is no such question as to the press.

It is an uncertain way of obtaining information, but not unethical. If a senator, with a full sense of responsibility, wants to tell reporters, in general terms, what he has said at such a meeting, the problem of propriety is his own. He may figure that his duty and the public interest outweigh a question of propriety. Call it a question of honor, if you like, and the case is still the same.

Newsmen Must A Reporter

Play the Game in information under the seal of confidence has no such option. He is muzzled regardless of his own notions of the public interest. He may feel that he has made a mistake in accepting the confidence, believing that he would have been able to come by the same information elsewhere without restrictions. But still he must play ball.

Some reporters, however, refuse to accept confidences, and I have a distinct mental picture of Mike Haggerty, of the New York Times, on a couple of occasions when persons offered confidential information to groups of reporters, holding up his hands and saying, "Count me out. I am a newspaper reporter and not a confidant."

In saying that guessers were dressed up as statements of fact and criticizing some newspaper owners for that, the President lays a general charge of fakery against all the reporters on that story. He says also that the whole press by neglecting to specify what papers he means. He gives no evidence beyond his own arbitrary interpretation of a controversy to which he is a party.

If some senators did understand that nature of the discussion was privileged, while others thought it was all confidential, then there was no valid confidence at all, for in that case each man was to let his conscience and discretion be his guide. It would be enlightening to know whether the senators were allowed to or did take notes during the discussion.

Notes Tradition Reporters long ago overcame a tradition that it was amateurish or bush league to take notes on the ground that the sight of pencil and paper would tend to frighten the subject and make him choke up.

In London in my time some British officials refused to permit notes to be taken. That was their way out in case they overspoke themselves. They could say they had been misquoted. So the reporters trained themselves to concentrate and remember the exact phrasing of the answers.

On leaving the room they would huddle somewhere and make notes, consulting on doubtful points, and working together, we could reconstruct the story almost exactly, and certainly without important error.

The senators in this case appear to have given inexact or free interpretations of the discussion, but, however that may be and regardless of the degree of confidence or violations by the senators, the press is not involved unless senators are to be classed as unreliable informants.

'Savior of Madrid' Pledges Loyalist Resistance to Last

Premier Negrin Backs Defiant Stand of General Jose Miaja.

VALENCIA, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Sixty-year-old Jose Miaja, "Savior of Madrid" and commander of all armies in the central and south-eastern zone remaining to the Spanish government, tonight vowed continued resistance against the Insurgents.

"As long as there is a plot of ground left in my zone we shall fight on," he declared, "and I hope we hold out that the democracies will become convinced that it is on our republican soil that the future of millions of people outside Spain will ultimately be decided."

Miaja came to Valencia from Madrid where his forces have held back besieging Insurgents for 27 months. He conferred today with General Leopoldo Mandendez, commander of the army defending Valencia.

Miaja granted an interview following the conference. Inhabitants of Valencia had received calmly the news of Generalissimo Franco's conquest of Catalonia and Miaja quietly acknowledged the loss of the rich northeast.

The general insisted, however, that the government was still in splendid position to hold out in its remaining one-fourth of Spain. "From the immediate viewpoint and as a result of the situation created by our losses in Catalonia, victory is very difficult for us the time being. But we certainly are in splendid position to put up a big fight and hold out in the central zone."

The stocky, heavy-jowled strategist who made "no pasaran!"—"they shall not pass!"—the slogan for the defenders of Madrid, asserted:

"We are prepared to stand the greatest test we have been put to thus far. As far as we are concerned we know our independence depends on our ability to maintain a portion of our territory. Resistance means a lot to us and we certainly are ready to resist."

depends on our ability to maintain a portion of our territory. Resistance means a lot to us and we certainly are ready to resist."

PREMIER NEGRIN TO "RESIST TO END"

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Premier Juan Negrin and his government intend to return shortly to Valencia and "resist to the end" against Generalissimo Franco's victorious legions, the Spanish government embassy spokesman declared tonight.

This was considered here the Spanish government's answer to Franco's rejection of a government peace offer based on a request for removal of Italian and German influence from Spain, "no reprisals" by either side, and establishment of a government that would represent all of Spain.

The embassy spokesman refused to comment on reports in official circles that Britain and France might recognize the Franco regime as the sole official government of Spain as a means of ending the war.

British officials apparently were fearful that Franco would count entirely on Germany and Italy for post-war help if recognition were delayed.

GENERAL FRANCO REPEATS DEMANDS.

PERPIGNAN, France, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Spanish government officials announced tonight that the hard-headed Juan Negrin cabinet had decided to continue the fight in defense of the one-fourth of Spanish soil still in its hands.

The announcement indicated Insurgent Generalissimo Franco had repeated his demands for unconditional surrender to end the 30-month civil war—an insistence which brought a breakdown in peace negotiations.

The government's decision to fight on was made known shortly after Julio Alvarez del Vayo, foreign minister of the Spanish government, conferred at Perpignan with members of the Spanish cortes (parliament) and then hastily crossed the border for a conference with Premier Negrin.

The Insurgents were said to have remained adamant in refusing the government's last condition for peace—mere safe conduct from Spain for leaders of Leftist parties, labor unions and military forces who are now in the central government zone.

Communist leaders, a factor in Negrin's organized support, indicated they were preparing to move to central Spain, following the government either to Valencia or Madrid.

BEST BABY CONTEST RESEMBLES CENSUS

Parents Have No Doubts and Vie for $25 To Start 'His' Bank Account.

The mothers and fathers of Atlanta are not lacking in pride when it comes to their offspring. The entry list for The Constitution's Best All-Round Baby Contest is rapidly taking the proportions of a city census.

The Best All-Round Baby Contest is not solely a search for the prettiest baby or the one most perfect physically, but to find the best "all-round."

Little Jackie Taylor, who plays the child of Carole Lombard and James Stewart in "Made for Each Other" which opens at Loew's Grand Friday, was considered Hollywood's most perfect baby by those who selected him in a search conducted by Producer David O. Selznick. The Constitution holds that a child just as perfect is right here in Atlanta. Judging by the number of entries already received, the parents think so, too.

The committee of well-known professional child experts will select Atlanta's best all-round baby. The place of the judging will be announced later, but the time is set for 11 o'clock Friday morning. The best all-round baby will receive a prize of $25. What an opportunity to open a bank account. The two runners-up will win $15 and $10 respectively.

Why not enter your baby? Just fill in the form and send it in to the Best All-Round Baby Contest Editor at The Constitution. Any child not more than two years of age is eligible.

BORAH TO LEAVE HOSPITAL.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Friends reported today that Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, who went to a hospital with the gripe last week, would return to his office Thursday.

were 97 who said they were Americans, among them the 37 already recognized as such by the United States embassy in Paris.

Noel Field, American member of the international commission, telephoned the embassy to ask that a representative be sent here to determine the status of the others, few of whom carried passports.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"The past is stone, and stands forever fast."

The whole country will be noting the news from Atlanta that General Lee and his Confederates may yet ride across Stone Mountain's face. At the call of Governor Rivers, the Georgia legislature is considering a plan for completion of the memorial launched so many years ago and lost a while in financial strait and artistic temper. First of the great mountain-hewn monuments to be proposed, the Stone Mountain one remains the most important and appealing in spite of others completed now against mountain faces in the west. Most important because it is the most accessible to the greatest number of Americans. Most appealing because of the great isolated stone in which it is to be carved and because its subject matter has the superior romance of a lost cause in a storied land.

The Stone Mountain Memorial completed would be an eighth wonder of the world. To a city whose story has been made immortal by Margaret Mitchell it would give reminder forever of the immortality. It would hold the permanent attention of the world. Thousands would come each month to look upon the marvel in muscovite and to know that in the land of many things gone with the wind a tradition survives as stone survives.

If Atlantans get excited about Stone Mountain now they will see to it that the memorial is completed. There is a history of getting excited about something and putting it over. The plan of Atlanta, once established, is famed throughout the world. And here is an opportunity given by nature and history to possess something unique in all the world. The other side of the situation, that long failure to complete the memorial, is a shocking reflection on Atlanta's fame. There is something shiftless, inefficient, lazy, defeated, dead about the half-finished work as it stands today. Those who look at it have some of the feeling people had after the Florida boom of 1924-25 when they would come upon magnificent ornamental gates that were to have given entry to teeming new towns or animated subdivisions and had become instead the sole reminders of a hope that was lost.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
DOUGLAS, Ga., Feb. 7.—The lifeless body of Sam J. Walton, 29-year-old Savannah salesman, victim of carbon monoxide poisoning, was found in his parked automobile on a highway near here early today.

Coroner John Ricketson announced a suicide verdict after an inquest held later in the day. Walton registered at a Douglas hotel yesterday. His body, found by a passing farmer on the Willacoochee road, was identified by the hotel manager. A hose was attached to the exhaust pipe and extended through a window of the car, the motor of which was still running when found. Walton was believed to have been dead several hours.

WHILE THE POLICE STAND BY

Editor Constitution: As a regular Constitution reader, I congratulate The Constitution on the stand it has taken in regard to recent outrages perpetrated on the streets of Atlanta by masked and hooded hoodlums.

Being a descendant of an old line of southern families, and being justly proud of my Confederate ancestors, many of whom, of timely necessity, were members of the post-war "Klan," I, like many others, deplore the fact that the condition exists in the United States and Georgia, that permits hooded gangsters to interfere with the liberties of free citizens.

Are we so uncivilized and so ignorant that we will idly stand by, as did some of our paid law enforcement officers, and see gang law override the very foundations of democracy? Are we so timid that we will not put forth some action to end these atrocities? It is enough that Europe is infested with "storm troopers," "black shirts" and concentration camps, denying personal privilege and denying personal liberty?

Whether the recent kidnappings in Atlanta were a hoax, or not, the fact remains that a precedent has been set proving that any citizen can be abducted and spirited away in the metropolis of Atlanta before the very eyes of citizens and police and nothing done about it. It is a serious situation.

May our great American press, through its editorial columns, continue to keep the people informed and carry on high the banner of "Liberty and Justice for All." Thanks again for the firm and militant attitude on this outbreak of lawlessness. The citizens of our country need never fear for democracy as long as our newspapers continue as free and unbiased mediums of information.

VOTERS BACK PLAN OF F. D. R. TO LEVY ON U. S. BONDS, PAY

'Special Privileges' Condemned in Gallup Poll as House Prepares Income Tax Measure.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP, Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—President Roosevelt's recent proposal to remove federal income tax exemptions from government bonds and to tax the salaries of state and local officials is favored by a large majority of the nation's voters in a cross-section survey by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

A bill was introduced in the house last week to tax state and local government workers, who are at present immune from the federal income levy. Separate legislation is planned to end the tax exemption on all future government bonds. The public's attitude toward both these measures is indicated in the Institute's surveys on these two issues:

"Do you think people who work for the state and local governments should pay federal income taxes on their salaries?"

Yes 87% No 13%

"Should people who own United States government bonds or state or municipal bonds have to pay federal income taxes on their income from these securities?"

Yes 75% No 25%

The President has twice called for legislation to remove the tax exemptions.

The chief reasons why voters favor taxing government bonds is that the owners of such securities can afford to pay taxes, that they are receiving a guaranteed income, and that because "people buy government bonds to escape taxation" the government should "plug up the loophole."

Some voters argued, however, that the national, state and local governments would have greater difficulty borrowing money if the tax exemptions were removed.

The main opposition to taxing government securities comes from voters in the upper income class. The survey shows. But even there a majority favor the idea in principle.

Tax Government Bonds?

Yes No

Upper Income Group 69% 31%

Middle Income Group 73 27

Lower Income Group 81 19

There has been much controversy in Washington over whether the courts would uphold taxes on state and local officials. A long line of judicial decisions has held that congress possesses no constitutional power to levy such taxes, and many jurists think a constitutional amendment would be necessary.

The indications from the Institute survey are that, if such an amendment were put to the people, ratification would not be difficult.

Roosevelt's Letter to Judge Roberts

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's letter to Judge Floyd H. Roberts follows:

My Dear Judge Roberts: I feel that in justice to you and your family I should write to you in regard to the refusal of the senate to confirm your appointment as United States district judge for the western district of Virginia.

First of all, I tender you my thanks for the honorable, efficient, and in every way praiseworthy service that you have rendered to the people of the United States in general and to the people of the western district of Virginia in particular.

Second, I wish to know that not one single person who has opposed your confirmation has lifted his voice in any shape, manner or form against your personal integrity and ability.

In order that you may know the full history of what has occurred, I take this opportunity to summarize the story.

On March 17, 1935, I received a letter from Senator Glass enclosing a clipping from a local Virginia paper. This newspaper article, quoting an editorial in another local Virginia paper, stated that it would be necessary to receive the backing of Governor Price, of Virginia, before any Virginian could hope for a federal appointment.

Senator Glass in his letter asked if federal appointments, for which Senate approval is necessary, would be subjected to the effective veto of the Governor of Virginia.

EXPLAINS TO SENATOR DIFFERENCE IN POWER

To this I replied on March 18, explaining to the senator the difference between the appointive power, which is in the President, and the power of confirmation, which is in the senate. I pointed out to the senator that time-honored courtesy permits senators and others to make recommendations for nomination, and, at the same time, the President has sought information from any other source deemed advisable.

On March 19 Senator Glass wrote me again, covering his construction of Article II of the constitution, and asking me again as to the accuracy of the newspaper statement. He winds up by saying "the inference is, of course, that you approve the offensive publication which was the basis of my inquiry."

I replied to this letter from the senator on March 21 in a personal and friendly vein. I stated that I was glad that he seemed to agree in our construction of the constitution. I told him that I was not in the habit of confirming or denying any newspaper article or editorial. Obviously if I were to begin that sort of thing, I would have no space to attend to my executive duties.

I TOLD THE SENATOR TO GIVE RECOMMENDATIONS. I told the senator to go ahead as before and make recommendations; that I would give such recommendations every consideration, but that I would, of course, reserve the right to get opinions from any other person I might select. I ended by asking the senator to forget the newspaper article and wished him a good vacation and expressed the hope that he would come to see me on his return.

Subsequent to this date, I received a number of recommendations for the position of United States district judge for the western district of Virginia—from among them recommendations in behalf of two gentlemen from Senator Glass. I am not certain whether these recommendations were at that time concurred in by the junior senator from Virginia, but this is possible. Other recommendations were received from citizens of Virginia to a total number, as I remember it, of five or six.

The attorney general was asked by me to report on these recommendations, paying attention as usual to the qualifications of each person suggested. I might add that your name was on this list but that as no time to my knowledge, did you seek the office of judge.

CONFEEES DECIDED YOU WERE BEST FITTED. The attorney general and I held several conferences with the result that we concluded that you were best fitted to fill the judgeship.

As a result, I wrote on July 6 to both of the Virginia senators stating that I had concluded to appoint you, that a number of gentlemen had been suggested for the place, but that I believed you to be the best fitted.

The following day, July 7, I received a telegram from Senator Glass stating that he and his colleague would feel obliged to object to your appointment as being personally objectionable to them, and that a letter would follow. A few days later I received a letter from the senator stating that he could not conceive any fair reason why one of his candidates had not been appointed.

It is worth noting that neither senator on July 7 or subsequently raised any question as to your integrity or ability, and the only objection was that you were personally objectionable.

In regard to the original newspaper article suggesting that Governor Price had been given the veto over federal appointments, this and similar stories are, of course, not worth answering or bothering about, for the very simple reason that no person—no

Governor, no senator, no member of the administration has at any time had, or ever will have, any right of veto over Presidential nominations. Every person with common sense knows this.

WITHE GREAT CREDIT

Your appointment followed, you took the oath of office, and have been serving with great credit as district judge since then.

Your name was sent by me to the senate in January, 1935, together with many other recess appointments.

We come now to the last chapter. Your nomination was referred to the judiciary committee of the senate and by the chairman of that committee to a subcommittee of three. It appears from the record that both senators from Virginia registered their objection with the subcommittee saying "this nomination is utterly and personally offensive to the Virginia senators."

I take this opportunity to summarize the story. The subcommittee reported back the nomination to the full committee without recommendation, stating the raising of the matter of senatorial courtesy and saying that this matter had not been a direct issue since 1913.

At a special meeting of the full committee on the judiciary, before the committee went into executive session, attention was invited to the presence of the Governor of Virginia, to the presence of two former Governors of Virginia, and to the presence of the nominee and his counsel.

After lengthy discussion the committee went into executive session, reopening the doors an hour later.

REFUSES TO HEAR ALL OF WITNESSES. The record shows that at this time the committee heard the Governor of Virginia in favor of the nominee and also former Governor Lee Trinkle and former Governor Westmoreland Davis, who were called to the stand by the committee, instead of hearing other witnesses in behalf of the nominee, many of whom were present, moved that a list of these further witnesses be incorporated in the record without hearing them. The committee also agreed to receive certain letters and editorials in behalf of the nominee and, finally, a record of designations of nominees from former Governors of Virginia to sit in other judicial districts, this list including many designations of yours made by former Governor Harry F. Byrd.

That was followed by your own testimony.

The privilege of making the closing and sole arguments against you was accorded to the two senators from Virginia.

Senator Glass stated that neither he nor his colleague had formally or definitely made any statement affecting your capabilities.

He proceeded to review the newspaper reports of last March, stating that he had not communicated with the Governor to ascertain whether or not the latter had authorized the publication, and spoke of his letter to me. He went on to state that the President had not answered his question up to this date, except by sending the nomination to the senate.

STATEMENT DOESN'T SQUARE WITH FACTS. You will recognize from what I have written you that as far back as last March, in reply to Senator Glass, I told him categorically that I never answered any questions relating to the credibility or otherwise of newspaper articles or editorials, and I asked him to forget the newspaper article altogether. Therefore, the statement of Senator Glass to the committee does not square with the facts.

Continuing, the senior senator from Virginia referred to other newspaper articles which spoke of "rebukes" to the senators. It is almost needless for me to suggest that neither you nor I pay any attention to such excuses. Finally, Senator Glass stated "as a matter of fact, the President of the United States did give to the Governor of Virginia the veto power over nominations made by the two Virginia United States senators."

I am sorry, in view of my long personal friendship for the senior senator, that he has made any such statement, and I can only excuse it on the ground of anger or forgetfulness.

NEITHER OF THESE STATEMENTS IS TRUE. At the end of his speech Senator Glass said "Mr. Cummings never had the slightest idea of giving consideration to the recommendations of the Virginia senators because the Governor of Virginia had been promised the right of veto on nominations that they made." Neither of these statements is true.

Sensor Glass was followed by Senator Byrd, who stated that your nomination was personally offensive to both senators, in fact, "personally obnoxious."

At the very close of the judiciary committee hearing Governor Price stated "Senator Glass has made a charge against me. He is entirely mistaken about it. The Governor further stated that he was not involved in the newspaper story."

The committee thereupon abruptly closed the hearing and went into executive session, with the result, as you know, that your nomination was reported adversely to the senate.

This brief history repeats several episodes in the history of the United States, which have occurred from time to time during the past 150 years. In other cases nominations by former Presidents of men of outstanding ability and character have been denied confirmation by the senate, not on the plea that they were unfit for office but on the sole ground that they were personally obnoxious to the senator or senators from the state from which they came.

During this whole period Presidents have recognized that the constitutional procedure is for a President to receive advice, i. e., recommendations, from senators. Presidents have also properly received advice, i. e., recommendations, from such other sources as they saw fit.

Thereupon Presidents have decided on nominations in accordance with their best judgment, and in most cases basing their judgment on the character and ability of the nominee. In many cases, of course, the recommendations of senators have been followed, but in many other cases they have not been followed by Presidents in making the nominations.

Thereupon, under the constitution, the senate as a whole—not the senators from one state—has the duty of either confirming or rejecting the nomination.

DUTY RESTRICTED TO NOMINEE'S ABILITY. It is, of course, clear that it was the intention of the constitution of the United States to vest in the senate as a whole the duty of selecting and confirming solely on the ground of the fitness of the nominee.

Had it been otherwise, had the constitution intended to give the right to veto to a senator or two senators from the state of the nominee, it would have said so. Or to put it another way, it would have vested the nominating power in the senators from the state in which the vacancy existed.

On somewhat rare occasions the senate, replying on an unwritten rule of senatorial courtesy, which exists in no other constitution, has rejected nominees on the ground of their being personally obnoxious to their senators, thus vesting in individual senators what amounts in effect to the power of nomination.

In the particular case of which you are the victim, the constitution, in effect, said to the President—"We have nominated to you two candidates acceptable to us; you are hereby directed to reject the nomination of anybody else selected by you, however fit he may be."

Perhaps, my dear Judge Roberts, the rejection of your nomination will have a good effect on the citizenship and the thinking of the whole nation in that it will tend to create a greater interest in the constitution of our country, a greater interest in its preservation in accordance with the intention of the gentlemen who wrote it.

I am sorry, indeed, that you have been the victim. Against you not one syllable has been uttered in derogation of your character, or ability in the legal profession or your record on the bench.

Very sincerely yours, FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

F. D. R. DENOUNCES VOTE ON ROBERTS

on the grounds of the fitness of the nominee."

The President said he did not know what the next step would be as he had not given it any thought. He made the same statement when asked to reject a new nominee had been selected.

The President in his letter to Judge Roberts, which referred to his letter to Glass, noted that Senators Glass and Byrd had recommended two other men for the judgeship. He said other Virginia citizens had submitted names and in all about five or six were considered.

After a conference with the attorney general, he said, Roberts was found to be the best fitted.

The Chief Executive read excerpts from his lengthy letter to a press conference. Afterward he was asked to comment on a suggestion years ago by President Harrison that judgeships be removed from federal patronage.

The President replied he was inclined to think Harrison was right. In his letter to Roberts, Roosevelt said:

"In the particular case of which you are the unfortunate and innocent victim, the senators from Virginia have in effect said to the President—'We have nominated to you two candidates acceptable to us; you are hereby directed to reject the nomination of anybody else selected by you, however fit he may be.'"

In conclusion, the President said rejection of Judge Roberts perhaps would have "a good effect on the citizenship and the thinking of the whole nation in that it will tend to create a greater interest in the constitution of our country, a greater interest in its preservation in accordance with the intention of the gentlemen who wrote it."

"I am sorry, indeed," he said to Roberts, "that you have been the victim. Against you not one syllable has been uttered in derogation of your character, or ability in the legal profession or your record on the bench."

Mr. Roosevelt asserted that Senator Glass had made the veto charge before the senate committee despite the fact that he told Glass last March 21 that the newspaper article he queried about was not worth bothering about and that Glass was asked to go ahead and make recommendations.

He told Glass, however, he said, that he reserved the right to get opinions from "any other person I might select."

Sensor Glass, after reading the President's letter tonight, said: "It's hardly worth discussing. There's nothing to it, but I may have something to say about it in the senate later."

3 GEORGIA PROJECTS HOUSE GROUP OKAYS APPROVED BY PWA

Requests Totaling $31,242 Sent to Washington for Payment.

Requisitions by three Georgia communities for PWA funds totaling $31,242 were approved yesterday by the regional office, and sent to Washington for payment, H. T. Cole, regional Public Works Administration director, reported.

The first requisition, Cole said, represents 25 per cent of the total cost of the approved project, and may be applied for as soon as the community has raised its portion, or 55 per cent of the project cost.

Cities whose requests for federal funds met approval yesterday were Brunswick, which asked $18,750 as an initial payment on a $76,000 street improvement program; Decatur, which requested $6,250 for a general municipal improvement program totaling $25,000; and Nichols, which requested $6,242 for a $25,400 waterworks.

The city of Griffin's request for the second portion of its federal grant for the construction of a municipal abattoir was also approved and sent to Washington, Cole said. The requisition for the second portion of the federal grant, amounting to 10 per cent of the cost of the building, may be made when the project is half finished, and will be paid when it is 70 per cent completed.

Poll Officials Will Purge Vote Lists

Names of Deceased Atlantans, Non-Residents To Be Removed During Commissioner Election.

Double duty loomed yesterday for managers and clerks of the 65 voting precincts in Fulton county's election to select a successor to Commissioner George F. Longino, resigned.

They will hold the election, but during their dull moments they will begin a purge of registration lists.

Press Huddleston, chairman, and W. F. Brandt, secretary, of a special committee of poll managers named to assist in culling all names on the lists not legally qualified to vote, yesterday called on election officials to begin their work.

The committee was established after the defeat of the joint city-county bond election last fall. The action followed complaints that hundreds of dead persons and non-residents were still carried on the lists, and some attributed the loss of the bond election to cause.

Co-operating with the committee, Claude Mason, chief deputy ordinary, yesterday received copies of the letter Huddleston and Brandt have addressed to each worker and will distribute them today when boxes are made available to election managers.

Plans Double Check.
The communication to the poll workers asks them to go through lists during the "lulls in voting" and to prepare a list of names of all persons who have moved from the precincts or who have died and any others whose names are not legally on the voting lists.

These will be collected Friday at the same time that the voting in the commissioner's race is consolidated, and new lists of doubtful registrants, prepared by the Fulton county board of registrars will be distributed to the managers and clerks for a further check.

In this way, the committee hopes to get a double check on all doubtful names and to facilitate the work of the registrars.

A total of 46,707 persons are qualified to vote in Thursday's election and managers will scan lists bearing that number of names, it was said yesterday.

Huddleston pointed out that election managers know the persons qualified to vote in the various precincts probably better than any other group and that their work in aiding in purging the lists would be of "immense value."

He also said that managers and clerks are the "ones who have made the most complaints" about faulty registration and "this is their opportunity to do a constructive service by perfecting the voting lists."

Jury to Hear Adams.
The Fulton county grand jury yesterday deferred until Friday calling Dr. Charles Ross Adams, commissioner, who charged at a commission meeting last week that waste and extravagance are rampant in administration of the county and that it has been under one-man domination for two years.

Frank R. Mitchell, foreman, announced that Dr. Adams will be called before the grand jury at noon Friday and that Longino will be asked to appear also. After the two have been heard, the body will decide whether to proceed with an investigation of Adams' charges, it was said.

Predicting a "landslide" victory, Judge Frank A. Hooper Jr., campaign manager for I. Glover Hailey, one of the candidates to succeed Longino, announced Hailey made two addresses yesterday in behalf of his candidacy.

Joe Hill Smith, attorney and another candidate, issued a statement saying he would try to serve "the interest of the vast army of working people of this county" if elected. He said he was not a candidate of any clique or faction and if elected would "represent the interests of all the people."

Roberts Speaks.
Marvin Roberts, Buckhead drug-gist and another candidate, spoke last night at a mass meeting in his honor held at North Fulton High school. More than 700 persons attended. Roberts declared that "I have made no promises, and I intend to make none." His speech was broadcast.

Virtually all of the candidates also appeared before a meeting of the Tammany Club, 121½ Luckie street, last night and spoke briefly, outlining their platforms.

After the candidates' speeches, C. L. Wood, president of the club, presented his annual message for 1939. He recommended an investigation by the proper committees of the proposed city-county merger plan, and the question of a sales or gross income tax for Georgia.

Liquor Salesmen Told To Prove State Residence

By The Associated Press.
State Revenue Commissioner T. Grady Head has ruled retail liquor store employees must submit proof of Georgia residence for one year prior to January 1, 1939.

All employees, other than the licensee himself, must submit applications to the revenue department accompanied by a certificate by the county ordinary in proof of the year's residence.

"The license of any retail liquor dealer in the state of Georgia will be subject to revocation or cancellation if said dealer be found to have in his employ a person who has not resided in the state of Georgia for a period of 12 months prior to January 1, 1939," Head wrote in a notice to licensees.

SERUM FOR 250,000 SPED TO KENTUCKY

Fear Heavy Death Toll From Flu, Pneumonia in Wake of Floods.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 7.—(AP) Vaccine for 250,000 persons was rushed into 30 flood-stricken eastern Kentucky mountain counties today to fight influenza and pneumonia as the Ohio river, rising slowly from Cincinnati toward the Mississippi, spread over additional lowland areas.

Although Red Cross disaster committees along the Ohio river south of Cincinnati "stood by" for emergency duty, authorities said conditions are not alarming and there was no chance of 1937's high mark being repeated.

The Red Cross and Kentucky health department authorities co-operated in carrying relief necessities and medical supplies to the mountains. Dr. A. T. McCormack, state health commissioner, personally went into the stricken area after expressing fear that a heavy death toll might be revealed.

Seriousness of the mountain situation came as the small communities along creeks, which rose quickly, flowed over rooftops in some sections and then fell as rapidly, had communications restored.

Dr. McCormack said: "This is the worst flood in the history of the mountains" as he asked for an appropriation from the emergency fund of the United States Public Health Service.

Arabs Snub Jews at Parley

Refuse To Sit With Zionists in Conference Over Palestine; Chamberlain Pleads for Harmony.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain today recommended his policy of "personal" appeasement to Jews and Arabs as two bitter quarrels complicated the conference called to settle the future of Palestine.

First of all the Arabs refused to sit in conference with Jewish delegates, forcing Chamberlain to address the delegations separately. Then the Arabs squabbled among themselves over permitting moderate Palestine Arabs to sit in the conference. The first scheduled business discussion had to be postponed.

Malcolm MacDonald, secretary for colonies, and Richard Austen Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, tried to reconcile the moderate and radical Arabs until 4 o'clock this morning, but when the Arabs arrived at St. James' palace in their native costumes and surrounded by their bodyguard, the moderate delegates were not present.

Chamberlain immediately showed his dissatisfaction with the Arab attitude toward joint meetings with Jewish delegates by telling them, "the first essential step to understanding is personal contact."

The prime minister congratulated the Jews on their "discipline and restraint" in Palestine and told both delegations:
Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the World Zionist organization;

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, of New York, and the Marquess of Reading responded to Chamberlain's speech for the Jews. Prince Mohamed Abdel Moneim, of Egypt, responded to Chamberlain's spoke for the Arabs.

Georgia Tech Basketeers Will Clash With Sewanee Tonight

FLORIDA, AUBURN MAY DEDICATE TIGER STADIUM

If Completed, $180,000 Plant Will Be Opened Thanksgiving.

AUBURN, Ala., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Coach Jack Meagher, of Auburn, said today plans were under preliminary discussion looking toward dedication of the Plainsmen's new football stadium here next Thanksgiving in a battle between Auburn and Florida.

The 1939 Florida-Auburn game previously has been announced for Montgomery, December 2.

If the $180,000 stadium now under construction is completed, Meagher said, the clash might be changed to Auburn, Thanksgiving Day, November 30.

All discussions of the change thus far are entirely contingent upon completion of the stadium, the coach emphasized.

The stadium will seat approximately 10,000 and will have a field house. It is being built with Auburn and PWA funds.

North Avenue Place Sacred Heart Team

North Avenue Presbyterian and Sacred Heart will renew their basketball warfare at 3 o'clock this afternoon on the Y. W. C. A. court on Auburn avenue.

North Avenue has compiled one of the greatest winning records in the southern states and this afternoon is the one game of the year both teams have been looking forward to.

It's success or failure, hanging in the balance.

'Jones and I Won Either Way,' Sarazen

CLEARWATER, Fla., Feb. 7.—(P)—Now that his golf game is tuned for competitive play again, Gene Sarazen stepped today into the medal play-match controversy.

"I can bet 'em either way, hole-by-hole or add-'em up," remarked the cocky little scrapper who never has ducked a verbal argument any more than he has turned down a links challenge.

The man-to-man play in the annual Professional Golfers Association championship is perfectly satisfactory Gene, taking final workouts here before joining the winter tournament swing.

"A master can win at either match or medal play," he declared. "The fellows in my class—Walter Hagen, Bobby Jones and myself—always could win just as many tournaments at match play as medal."

All in the GAME

by Jack Troy

The Voice of Selma, Ala., was on the other end of the wire. And he said hello-o-o-o in such a way that if you hadn't known better you would have sworn it was Trader Horn.

"What's the trouble?" I cordially asked. "Is the business block of Selma burning again?"

"What did you say—business block? No, it happens at the moment that I'm burning—with enthusiasm. There's a great day coming at Auburn on February 22. We're going to have Governor Dixon, a barbecue, football game and maybe a fan dance by yours truly in celebration of the new fieldhouse and stadium now under construction."

When the business block of Selma is burning or Maurice Bloch is bubbling over with enthusiasm, there really is nothing left to do but hang on and listen. Unless you have a previous engagement or refuse to pay for the call.

Bloch, the Voice of Selma, also is president of the Auburn Alumni Association. "A" stands for Auburn in Alabama so far as Maurice Bloch is concerned.

And I think that old football yell really had its origin around Bloch. He was walking through the stands at a game one day when this cute co-ed from Selma, attending Auburn, said: "Bloch, that hat!" And ever since, at football games, you hear folks yelling, "Bloch that hat!"

The Auburn alumni's esteemed president is deeply concerned at the moment with the big day later on this month. All the Auburn alumni will be there without urging, but Bloch wants the word to miss no one.

As a climax to a day of celebration, Coach Jack Meagher will put on a regulation spring game for the followers, and then they all will depart to their respective cities and await the fall when the first chance to see games in a stadium of their own will be offered.

Heretofore, Auburn's Plainsmen have roamed the land, playing all their games where fancy and the schedule dictated. But now they will have a place to hang their hat on some football Saturdays, so to speak.

And so it is very proper and fitting that the alumni should gather at the Loveliest Village this month and celebrate the culmination of their hopes and desires.

I thought it might be well to mention all this and leave the Voice of Selma hanging on the other end of the wire for a while. He probably hadn't noticed anything amiss, anyway, since there would have been no chance to get a word in edgewise.

"Enjoyed talking with you, Maurice. I might pass up the barbecue, as I never touch the stuff, but I can hardly wait to see the game."

WHEN SELMA BURNED.

Maybe this shouldn't be told on Auburn's austere alumni president, but he is always rigging up jokes on people, and so what Joe Engel pulled probably served him right.

Bloch was visiting the Bush League Barnum in Chattanooga a few years ago and a few of the boys were sitting around in the hotel room talking aimlessly.

They had a radio and Engel surreptitiously hooked on a gadget and retired to another room. Engel became the announcer.

Between programs, one of the fellows turned the radio off and Engel swung into action from the adjoining room. An excited voice blared from the loudspeaker—"Flash!—The entire business block of Selma, Ala., is in flames. All available fire fighting equipment from Selma and neighboring towns has been called out."

For once Bloch was speechless. He blushed, looked hurriedly from one face to another, and then, without a word, leaped to his feet, grabbed his hat and raced through the door.

'Tis said he still holds the record for going down

JOE LOUIS SIGNS FOR TITLE FIGHT WITH BOB ROPER

Bomber To Meet Unranked Veteran at Los Angeles April 24.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 7.—(UP)—Promoter Tom Gallery announced tonight that he had signed Heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis for a title fight with Jack Roper, of Roanoke, Va., here on April 24.

Gallery said he had completed an agreement with Mike Jacobs, of New York, by long-distance telephone late in the day. Terms were not disclosed.

Roper is a veteran who has been a trial horse for budding heavyweights here for several years. In his last start he knocked out Bob Nestell, one-time California white hope. Roper has no national ranking. He has been knocked out several times in some 15 years of campaigning.

The bout will be 10 rounds to a decision and will be recognized as a title engagement by the California Athletic Commission. The New York commission probably will abide by its 15-round rule, but Gallery said neither he nor Jacobs, who will be co-promoter, are concerned.

"The bout will be recognized everywhere in the world except in New York as a title fight," he said. "Jacobs will assist in the promotion. We will agree on the site and other details later."

Excluding Memorial Coliseum, which has been barred to professional ventures, there are three available stadia. They are Olympic auditorium, which seats 10,400; Gilmore stadium, which can handle 24,000 for a fight, and Wrigley field, which can handle approximately 35,000.

GRANT TO PLAY OPENER TODAY

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7.—(UP)—Wayne Sabin, Portland net star, who is seeking his, fifth straight Florida tournament title, led the favorites to the first round of the Everglades Club invitational tennis championships today.

Sabin, seeded No. 3 back of Gene Mako, of Los Angeles, and Bryan "Betsy" Grant, of Atlanta, whose opening matches were postponed until tomorrow, loafed through to a 6-2, 6-3 win over Alan Weatherly, of Palm Beach.

Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, seeded fourth, moved ahead without lifting his racket as Francis B. Roche, of Paris, defaulted.

Campbell Gillespie, Miami, defeated Winston Guest, New York, 6-1, 6-4.

Clarkston Defeats Decatur High Twice

Clarkston won a double-header from Decatur High Tuesday night on the Decatur court. The girls won, 32 to 31, and the boys came back with a 36-to-32 decision to make it a clean sweep.

Clarkston's girls took an early lead, 26 to 14, at the half but were unable to keep up the fast pace as Decatur closed in the margin rapidly in the second period.

In the boys' game, Rawlings, Robinson and Johnson were outstanding for the winners, with Bell, Wright and Broyles shining for the losers.

'SORE-ARM' ACES MAY DECIDE PENNANT RACES

What with the epidemic of sore arms which spread among major league hurlers last year, the two ace pitchers shown above may play important roles in the flag campaigns of the American and National leagues. Jerome H. (Dizzy) Dean, left, of the Cubs, and Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, right, Detroit Tiger, may "make or break" their team's pennant chances. Rowe expects a great season after a sojourn in the Texas league following the collapse of his "salary" arm. The irrepressible Dean, confident his arm is well, is sure the Cubs can ride into the World Series on his fast ball. The two are shown as they posed before the start of the first game of the 1934 World Series.

Lee Grissom Key Man In McKechnie's Plans

Lefthander Tries To Steal Base, Sprained Ankle, Infuriates Cincinnati Manager.

NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—(UP)—Everybody is talking about the Cincinnati Reds and the master minds of the Reds are talking about Lee Grissom, their eccentric southpaw, as the key man in their scheme to overthrow the champion Chicago Cubs.

Grissom's failure to come through last year possibly cost the Reds the pennant. Bill McKechnie, who piloted Cincinnati from last to fourth place in his first year at Cincinnati, winces every time Grissom's name is mentioned. He still gets a little red around the collar when he thinks of how close he came to winning the pennant and of the part Grissom played in cooling off the Reds when they were getting hot.

"I should have shot him," said McKechnie, who isn't given to loose talk. "Yes, sir, I should have shot him then and there. And I probably would have if Grissom hadn't agreed with me."

McKechnie, leaning back in an easy chair at the Hotel Commodore, was talking about the time last summer when Grissom tried to steal second base in the second inning of a game against the Phillies with the Reds ahead, 2-0. Grissom slid into the bag and was carried off the field with a sprained ankle. Just at that time the Reds were red-hot but Grissom's injury crushed their spirit and the Reds moved into Cincinnati and knocked them off four in a row.

"I asked Grissom what the hell his idea was," recalled McKechnie, "and he said, 'I won a game once by stealing second.'"

"Yeh, I told him, 'you lose 10 for us by pulling that stupid play.' He said, 'Yeh, I guess it was pretty dumb and you ought to fine me $1,000 and shoot me too.'"

Grissom, who had had a sore arm early in the year and wasn't of any use, was laid up the rest of the year when the National League pennant was just begging for somebody to take it. He won only two games all year.

Bowling

Two formidable rosters of Atlanta bowlers will furnish real competition to the Invading Roslyn, Virginia women's championship team that is making a tour of the south and is scheduled to roll exhibition matches on the downtown drives at 3 and 7:30 o'clock in the afternoon and evening of Thursday, February 9.

The team that will wear local colors in the afternoon match, at 3 o'clock Thursday, will include Lucille Rawlin, Jane Black, Martha Cleveland, Johnnie Carter and Margaret England. All five of these pinbusters are capable of bowling big games and do their best rolling in match and tournament play.

In the evening at 7:30 o'clock Babe Barker, Estelle Warrington, Dot Morris, Sarah Garner and Evangeline McEneaney will be on the firing line for the local endeavoring to offset the scores turned in by the invaders.

Ida Simmons, world's champion woman bowler, will have Evelyn Ellis, Blanche Woodson, Sue Miller and Caroline Hiser rolling with her on the top flight Roslyn All-Star team.

A challenge has just been received from bowlers in Columbus, Ga., who are willing to bowl any night of five men in Atlanta in a match in Atlanta and a match in Columbus, with a purse offered in each match in addition to the cost of games.

The Woolene Club, composed of employees of the Woolf Oil Company, will hold their annual bowling tournament on the downtown alleys beginning at 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon, February 10.

MUNDORFF FIVE TO BE FAVORED OVER INVADERS

Yellow Jackets Play L. S. U. Tomorrow Night, Vandy Saturday.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
Anxious to improve their conference standing of won two and lost two, Tech's basketeers will meet Sewanee tonight at 8 o'clock in the first of three league games within four days.

The Jackets, despite their loss to Florida last Saturday night, will be favored over the Tigers to-night but tomorrow night, a new set of Tigers from L. S. U. are expected to give the men of Mundorff as much or more than they can say grace over.

Vanderbilt furnishes the opposition for the third game Saturday night in Nashville and again the Jackets will be underdogs.

USUAL LINEUP.
Coach Roy Mundorff is expected to start his usual lineup tonight. Jim Hughes will be at center, Dillard Munford and Walter Haymans, forwards; George Smith and Junior Anderson, guards.

Mundorff will likely start in the place of the injured Jim Williams, who has a sprained ankle and is not expected to get back into action before next week.

Junior Anderson has about recovered from his leg ailment and will play as much as possible.

Indeed, the whole Tech starting five may be called on to go the whole route as Sewanee played Florida a fairly close game in Gainesville Monday night, and the 'Gators defeated the Jackets last Saturday night.

Point-getting for the Jackets will again depend on Haymans, Hughes and Anderson, the three who have shot most of the markers this year.

However, Smith usually comes through with points when needed. Once again the main strength of the Jackets will lie in their defensive ability with Smith and Anderson at guards. Both are fast and get the ball from the backboard more than their share of times.

Florida Defeats Sewanee Five, 44-37.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., Feb. 7.—(P)—Florida defeated Sewanee, 44-37, tonight for its fourth South-eastern conference basketball victory in five starts.

Bud Walton and Pat Reen paced the 'Gator five, each ringing up 14 points. Maccomb, Julian and Grey Doyle scored 10 each for Sewanee.

Florida held a bare 22-20 margin at half time, but managed to pull away in the final period despite slightly disorganized play at times.

BAUER TRIUMPHS AT PALM BEACH

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 7.—(P)—Comely Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I., today led the way into the second round of the annual women's golf tournament with an easy 5-and-4 victory over the Canadian titleholder, Mrs. Joseph Dagenais, of Montreal.

Miss Bauer, who won medal honors yesterday, will meet Mrs. H. F. Mack, of Easton, Pa., in the second round tomorrow. Mrs. Mack defeated Mrs. Charles Harbaugh, of Cleveland, Ohio, 3 and 2.

The first upset of the tournament came when Mrs. Dewitt Untermeyer, of Deal, N. J., eliminated the 1935 winner, Mrs. Philip Hill, of London, England, 6 and 5.

Mrs. Hill was badly off her game all through the match.

Mrs. Untermeyer's second-round opponent will be Mrs. William Hockenjos, of Lake Hopatcong, N. J., who today downed Mrs. Helen Sumpter, of Columbus, Ohio, 7 and 6.

Tech High Beats Commercial, 38-27; G. M. A. Licks Boys' High

SMITHIES NEED ONE MORE GAME TO CLINCH TITLE

Jack Pounds Scores 18 Points for City League Prep Leaders.

By ROY WHITE.
Tech High and G. M. A. were winners Tuesday afternoon in the semi-final round of the city prep basketball league, and retained their standings at the head of the pennant race, with only one round left to play.

Tech High defeated Commercial, in third place, 38 to 27, on the Henry Grady court, while G. M. A. made it a clean sweep in its two-game series with Boys' High on the College Park court. The score was 37 to 24.

The Smithies are still undefeated, while the Cadets have dropped only one decision and has a postponed game with Tech High, which may be the championship game of the season.

The Smithies reserves defeated Marietta's B team, 35 to 19, in a preliminary to make it a clean sweep for the afternoon.

SIXTH STRAIGHT.
It was the sixth straight victory for Tech High and leaves the Smithies with two games to be played and a struggle hold on the leadership of the league.

Commercial was within a point of a tie score at the quarter, trailing 7 to 8, and held on close in the second half, though Tech High led 19 to 14 at the intermission.

Tech High came back with a much better brand of ball in the second half and increased the lead to 34 to 22 as the last period began but could score only four points in the last 10 minutes. Commercial played a decidedly improved game, shifting Barrett to a forward position and removing Wyatt to a guard post. The new combination worked well together.

POUNDS GETS 18.
Although closely guarded all the way, Jack Pounds, leader of the league in points, continued to set the pace with 18, a majority of which were made from close range and from difficult angles. Captain Ammons was held to one foul goal, with the remainder of the scoring well divided. Wallace, rangy Commercial center, was high scorer for the losers with 10 points, most of which were made from batting in long stray shots.

Trammell Scott's handling of the Robert W. Woodruff dogs was a feature of the southern amateur field trials at Albany yesterday. Mr. Scott, president of the Southern Baseball Association, handled Ichuaway's Rambling Buckaroo as the pointer won second place in the derby and came back to win the all-age stakes. He also was in command of Ichuaway's Little Mike when this Woodruff-owned dog finished second in the all-age.

FULTON SHADES MARIETTA, 30-29

Fulton High avenged an early-season defeat in Marietta with a 30-to-29 decision Tuesday afternoon on the Fulton court in a preliminary to the annual North Georgia Interscholastic Conference tournament.

Beaulieu, with 18 points, was outstanding in the victory. He also played a great defensive game, as did Dickey and Donohoo. Fields scored eight points for Fulton.

Marietta's scoring was well divided, with every player, including a substitute, scoring at least one field goal.

WOODRUFF DOGS WIN TOP HONORS IN ALBANY MEET

Trammell Scott Handles Two Pointers in Their Three Triumphs.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 7.—Robert W. Woodruff's Ichuaway plantation kennel scored a great triumph in the southern amateur field trials' derby and all-age stakes today, winning second in the derby and first and second places in the all-age stake.

The same dog, Ichuaway's Rambling Buckaroo, won second in the derby and then came back to win the all-age with a smashing exhibition of skill and handling by Major Trammell Scott, president of the Southern Baseball Association. In second place in the all-age was Ichuaway's Little Mike. Third place went to Dwight Ellis' pointer, Flirt's Mirador. All three winners were pointers. The day was a bit warm for setters and they did not show to advantage.

RAMBLING BUCKAROO.
The victory of Ichuaway's Rambling Buckaroo was most impressive in that the dog had placed second in the derby early in the morning after the running of a second series. First place in the derby went to Bob Sealy's Dot Sealy Monomey. The Buckaroo was second and W. C. Potter's Blue Spring's Dot, handled by Richard Tift, was third.

Bob Sealy's triumph in the derby was his second one, his puppy entry having won that stake on Monday.

The derby stake was completed early this morning with the running of a second series in which the Buckaroo and Darhe, entry of Charles D. Jordan, of Monticello, competed. The Sealy entry had handled three coveys on Monday and this brought him the victory.

PLACED PREVIOUSLY.
The Ichuaway dogs have placed in four previous trials. Today's victory in the all-age and derby was one of the outstanding victories in the eight years of the trial. It was a tribute to the handling of Major Scott, one of the finest bird dog men in the nation.

It was Scott who years ago introduced the "Mike Milligan" strain to the Ichuaway kennels. Mike Milligan won the members and the open stake in the old Georgia trials; won the Georgia derby and the Continental. He made a great showing in the national trials, finding more birds than any other dog in the trial's history but being disqualified by one wild bird which got up out of a pointed covey.

The two winners today were of the Mike Milligan strain. The strain produces a bold pointing dog and one which ranges wide. Today The Buckaroo all but "went out of the country," covering every inch of the course and running smoothly together than ever before to finding and handling perfectly two coveys of birds.

ONE COVEY.
Ichuaway's Little Mike found and handled one covey in his second-place victory.

Ralph McGill Is Elected Vice President of Southern Amateur Club.

ALBANY, Ga., Feb. 7.—Members of the famous Southern Amateur Field Trial Club gathered tonight and elected Bob Sealy, of Panama City, Fla., their new president, succeeding W. C. Hamrick, of Albany.

Fred Jordan, of Atlanta; Colonel B. G. Allen, of Albany and New York, and J. T. Phillips, of this city, were named to the board of directors.

Trammell Scott, whose remarkable handling of the Woodruff dogs featured the closing of the trials, was presented the Ambassador Bingham trophy at the annual dinner tonight for his handling of the two pointers, Ichuaway's Rambling Buckaroo and Ichuaway's Little Mike in today's events.

Rambling Buckaroo won the all-age of the trials, and the Thomas C. Chubb trophy for the victory scored by Dot Sealy's Monomey in the derby stakes.

Among speakers at tonight's dinner were Trammell Scott, Delacey Allen and the two very able judges of these trials, C. B. Stickle, of Virginia, and G. W. Stanbery, of Jefferson City, Tenn. Great Horse To Warm Up for $100,000 Race in Mile Event.

RALPH MCGILL.
Honored at Albany.

SANTA ANITA PARK, Cal., Feb. 7.—(UP)—Seabiscuit goes out tomorrow to try to justify his rating as future book favorite for the fifth running of the $100,000 added Santa Anita handicap, the stake that may enable him to supplant Sun Beau as the turf's biggest money winner.

The Charles S. Howard handicap champion was named for a $2,000 allowance race over a mile route, his first start since defeating War Admiral at Pimlico last November 1. The Biscuit will face only two rivals, Mrs. E. Dene-mark's War Minstrel, winner of the Stars and Stripes handicap at Arlington park last season, and the French Lick Springs stable's Marica, America's top mare.

Seabiscuit, now just $36,000 shy of the $37,744 Sun Beau record, will carry top weight of 128 pounds on the age scale.

stairs at the Patten hotel. And it required the services of the fastest man in the party to catch him and three of the stronger gentlemen there to convince Bloch, now fumbling with a key at the lock of his car, that it was only an Engel prank.

Bloch has never got even for the stunt, but insists that he's still a young man and, like Engel's elephants, he will never forget.

I suppose that he means they'll forget how far down the list they finished from the pre-season's favorite role handed them last year.

HE REALLY HAS NO PEACE.
Coach Jack Meagher is a very mild and soft-spoken Texan. He speaks in a modified whisper. And there are some of the boys around Montgomery, for instance, who can imitate Meagher's voice to perfection. I mean, such fellows as Stuart X. Stephenson, who is president of the Southeastern league, and Sam Durden, who now has a large chunk of the Montgomery Bombers of the same league.

They're always getting Bloch long distance, in the guise of being Meagher, and continually talking him into some proposition for the good of Auburn. Bloch always is willing to listen on any proposition concerning Auburn—if it's good.

Of course, the charges are always reversed and Bloch has listened to "Meagher" talk for five or ten minutes before he catches on that the wind is blowing from the direction of Denmark.

And so they laugh and Maurice chokes, and a great time is had by all.

Bill Would Outlaw Masks in Georgia

Measure Making It Crime To Wear Costumes Concealing Identity Offered as Kidnap Aftermath.

Measures to prevent recurrence of the series of kidnappings by robed and hooded men, which terrorized downtown Atlanta Saturday night, spread yesterday to the capitol with introduction of a bill by Representative Davis, of Coweta county, outlawing all costumes which conceal identity.

The bill would make it a misdemeanor for any person to appear in public wearing any hood, mask or regalia which prevents his being recognized. The sole exception would be Santa Claus costumes. The law would be statewide in scope.

Awaiting action by the police committee of council, to which it was referred Monday, was an ordinance by Councilman J. Frank Beck prohibiting the public appearance of any persons or groups "masked or so dressed as to conceal their identity."

From police headquarters, however, came announcement by Chief Hornsby that he had "cleared" Patrolman Roy Eddleman, on duty at Peachtree and Cain streets, of using improper language to witnesses to the snatch there and who asked Eddleman what was going on.

Four witnesses appeared before Hornsby, he said, and denied they heard the policeman use insulting language. The patrolman also was said to have failed to interfere with the kidnapping. He explained by saying he observed the "victim" was smoking a cigarette throughout the time he was being "kidnaped."

"They offered to go before the police committee and explain what they saw and heard. I don't see

Atlanta Becomes Do-Nut Conscious

Atlanta has become "Do-Nut" conscious!

More than 14,723 dozen donuts have been sold in Atlanta by Camp Fire Girls since the start of their drive two weeks ago, according to Albert H. Waldon, chairman of the drive. "This record tops any recorded during previous drives," Chairman Waldon said. "With two days remaining for the girls to reach their goal of 15,000 dozen."

what Eddleman could have done, since no law was violated."

Mayor Hartfield previously had called for an investigation into the conduct of several members of the police department in connection with the raid of the hooded band.

Backers of the Davis and Beck measures will urge their passage despite a promise of Hiram W. Evans, imperial wizard of the Ku Klux Klan, who accepted Klan responsibility for the events, that he would take steps to insure there would be no repetition.

Evans made a public apology late Monday in a statement and said 15,000 Klan robes and masks which are "out" in Georgia had been called in and would be issued only for proper purposes.

It was explained the kidnappings were part of an "emergency initiation" which was staged to accommodate candidates who were leaving town immediately.

The descents of automobile parties in regalia on Broad and Alabama streets, Peachtree and Cain streets and Whitehall street below Trinity avenue, among other appearances, threw the city into an uproar early Saturday night.

COMMITTEE OKAYS $8,000 FOR MAYOR

Millican Bill To Extend Term of Office for One Year Also Is Approved.

The Senate Committee on Municipal Government yesterday approved the Millican bill increasing the salary of Mayor Hartfield from $8,000 to $8,000 per year and extending the term of the mayor and other city officials for one year.

The approval was voted 11 to 1, despite a strong attack on the bills by Senator Paul Lindsay, of Atlanta, who said he planned to submit a minority report which will precipitate a fight on the senate floor.

"I do not believe in legislating people into office and I do not believe in legislating them out," Senator Lindsay said in appealing for an adverse report on the Millican bills. He said he would join in approving them if referenda were attached but no member of the committee offered the referenda.

Those Protesting. Lindsay and a group of civic association leaders from the Kikwood and East Atlanta sections spoke in opposition to the bills while James D. Robinson Jr., Atlanta banker, and Aubrey Milam, former city councilman, joined Senator G. Everett Millican in asking committee approval.

The civic club representatives who announced before the committee were F. H. Newman, president of the Kirkwood Civic Club,

$50 Baby Bonus Urged As Protection for Needy

HARRISBURG, Pa., Feb. 7.—(P)—A $50 "baby bonus" for needy mothers is advocated in the Pennsylvania legislature.

Representative John J. Baker, of Pittsburgh, introduced the bill. Said he:

"My idea is not to increase the population. It's just to make sure mothers can depend on proper medical attention."

Harley F. Strong, organization chairman of the Ormewood Civic Club. Senators Millican and Lindsay laid before the committee resolutions opposing the bills from the East Side Civic Federation and the Ridgedale Civic Association.

"I am asking support of the bills because in the first place I think the salary of the mayor of Atlanta ought to be $8,000 a year and because I think that the term of all elective heads of the city government should expire at the same time," Senator Millican said.

Points to Others' Pay. Senator Millican pointed out that the city of Atlanta pays the superintendent of Grady hospital $7,500 a year and the city school superintendent the same salary.

J. R. Bachman, well-known civic leader and W. E. (Butch) Saunders, former member of council, appeared before the committee in opposition to the bills. Mayor Hartfield and a number of councilmen were present at the public hearing but did not speak.

Senator Roy Thrasher, of Watkinsonville, made the motion to report the bills favorably and his motion was voted for by all councilmen except Senator Lindsay.

Senator James T. Manning, of Marietta, chairman of the municipal government committee, presided at the hearing.

HOUSE COMMITTEE FAVORS CHAIN TAX

Amendment Would Levy as High as $1,200 on Each Store.

By The Associated Press.

A drastic tax on chain stores, modeled after the Louisiana system, with a scale of levies running up to $1,200 per store in chains of 375 or more establishments, was approved yesterday by the ways and means committee of the house of representatives.

The measure is an amendment of the present chain store tax which carries a maximum of $40 per store for the highest bracket.

Sponsored by Representatives Lanier, of Richmond, and Elliott, of Muscogee, the bill would eliminate the present tax of $2 on single stores and start the levy at $10 per store on chains containing two to ten establishments.

The tax scale is graduated according to the number of stores in a chain. The basis of computing the number of establishments is nationwide instead of state-wide as in the present law.

For instance, one chain store organization has about 30 stores in Georgia, but about 1,200 in the United States. This chain would pay $1,200 tax on each store in Georgia.

All revenue from the chain store tax is allocated for the eleemosynary institutions of the state. The revenue from the present tax is about $250,000 per year, but the proposed tax measure would produce an estimated $750,000, its sponsors say.

The bill will now come before the house in its numerical order for action.

Defense Bill Wins First Test

Unanimously Indorsed by House Body; Roosevelt Bares Sale of Anti-Air Equipment to Britain.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—(UP)

President Roosevelt disclosed today that the army has been enabled to buy better and cheaper anti-aircraft equipment during the past year as result of an administrative move permitting sale of outmoded equipment of this type to the British government.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement was made at a press conference shortly after the house military affairs committee unanimously reported an emergency defense bill authorizing $376,000,000 to boost army air corps fighting strength, bolster Panama Canal fortifications and augment army personnel.

He said that the State Department in 1937 granted the Sperry Gyroscope Company permission to sell anti-aircraft gun directors of an older model to Great Britain, and that since then the firm had stepped up production, made improvements for the sole use of the American army and reduced its per unit cost for each director.

The disclosure was considered partly an answer to the bitter controversy over the administration's co-operation with a French mission buying military planes in this country.

In discussing sale of the gun directors, Mr. Roosevelt denied reports that the directors embodied new military secrets. On the contrary, he said, several secret improvements have been made by the Sperry firm and the State Department has ruled that they can be used only by the American government and cannot be sold.

Since starting its British sales program, Sperry has stepped up production from one director a month to one a day, he said, and the American army estimates that it has saved $250,000 in the purchase of 93 of the latest type.

Mr. Roosevelt was particularly critical of a report that a plane detector—an instrument designed to discover the approach of enemy aircraft—had been perfected in this country. If this were true, he said, it would be an unpatriotic thing to blazon the news across the front pages of the country's newspapers.

The Associated Press reported the President said he did not blame the press, but demanded: If we have a secret of this kind, is it patriotic to give it out? Isn't it rotten to give newspapermen a false lead in a matter of that kind? he asked.

(Press and public have been given a raw deal, he added.)

BLEASE ASSAILS RIVERS' REGIME

by Representative Simmons, of Decatur county, and said the administration had taken $443,000 and "given it away to this Little New Deal building."

"I'd like to be shown where Sales Tax Ed Rivers had the right to do that," he cried.

Reading from the state constitution, Blease continued:

"They had no right to spend that money and they had no right to give it to that Little New Deal over there. I think that we ought to call on their bondsmen for that money to be put back in the state treasury."

"It was a sad day for the state of Georgia when Sales Tax Ed Rivers was born. I hope I'll live to see the day when he'll not be my Governor any longer."

Reads Letter to Rivers. Blease read to the house a letter he said he had sent to Rivers this fall declining an invitation to attend one of the Governor's pre-legislative conferences in which he thought the conference "wouldn't amount to anything."

It added Blease had "tried to keep you from passing a lot of foolish legislation" in the 1937-38 session and "if you are unable to run the state with an income of $43,000, I think it is useless to give you any more."

He said the administration had been "continually pulling monkey tricks on this house and on the state of Georgia. I am going to name this the monkey trick administration."

Simmons followed up his attack of Monday, when he charged $1,000,000 could be saved by abolishing "useless" departments, with announcement yesterday he would introduce bills to eliminate the State Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Entomology. State colleges and experiment stations would be assigned the duties of these departments under Simmons' plan.

ADMINISTRATION JOLTED IN CIVIL SERVICE FIGHT

A severe defeat of the Rivers administration was read into the house action postponing indefinitely consideration of a civil service measure Speaker Harris personally had had reinstated on the house calendar.

The house voted 83 to 80 to postpone action indefinitely instead of for one week only as suggested by administration leaders, who sought to delay debate on the proposition. This apparently killed the bill.

Last week, after the bill by Representative Hunt Maxwell, of Muscogee, and others had been tabled, Speaker Harris left the rostrum and personally fought to have the bill recalled. It was made the special order of business today.

Said Author Maxwell after the vote:

"If the house is unwilling even to consider a bill which is designed to save money by handling state jobs on a business-like basis, I do not see how the house can in all fairness to the people of Georgia, pass any legislation imposing new taxes on the people at this session of the assembly."

Sidelights on Doings and Sayings Of Georgia's General Assembly

Senator James H. McCranie pointed yesterday to the public service record of his home town of Milan with 200 residents.

He said Milan, which is split by the Dodge-Telfair county line, had provided 30 county and state officials in the past 20 years, four of them in the present general assembly.

Besides himself, he said the others were Representatives Lamar Wiggins and C. E. Yawn, of Dodge county, and Preston Rawlins, of Telfair county.

Senator Everett Millican's proposal on election recounts was amended and reported favorably yesterday by the upper house committee on privileges and elections.

The amendment reduced from 3 to 1 per cent the difference in votes between high and second high man before the latter can demand and receive a recount.

The same committee reported favorably Millican's bill to make the secret ballot in Georgia elections "completely secret," by dividing it into three detachable sections so that it could be impossible to go in a ballot box and tell how a person voted in any election. The bill would not apply to some counties which do not have the Australian ballot.

A house-approved measure to limit campaign expenditures in Georgia elections was recommended for passage yesterday by the senate committee on privileges and elections.

Representatives Hunt Maxwell, of Muscogee, and L. R. Morgan, of Troup, appeared before the committee to urge favorable action on their bill. It would limit campaign expenditures to $10,000 for United States senator and gubernatorial candidates, $2,500 for a week's delay was seen as a move to avert a showdown on the civil service issue. But Representative W. H. Lovett, of Laurens, asked indefinite postponement and his motion carried. Last week he had asserted he believed there was strong sentiment against civil service in the house at present.

Another civil service bill by J. H. Ennis, of Baldwin, is pending in the house. Administration leaders commented they hoped authors of the Maxwell measure and those interested in the Ennis bill would get together on a plan later.

But observers said the administration desired to avoid a showdown at this juncture of the session, resulting from fear of its possible effect upon later administrative proposals.

RIVERS WILL GIVE THIRD SPEECH TODAY

Governor Rivers, working yesterday on the third message he will deliver to the general assembly today, took time out to assure the house economy committee "full co-operation" in its program.

In a letter to Chairman Wilmer Lanier, Rivers said some of the economy recommendations possibly could be put into effect "in advance of legislation and, perhaps, some of them without the necessity of legislation."

Complying with his proposal, the committee announced to the house it was sending the executive department duplicates of all recommendations.

Rivers pointed out that the committee had been created by administrative leaders.

"This is the first time in my many years of public life that any administration has sponsored and, in good faith, co-operated with such an economy investigation," he wrote.

Lanier agreed with the suggestion that many committee suggestions could be acted upon by administrative order, including "the majority" of the proposals with reference to the Department of Education.

Rivers' message will be delivered at 11:30 o'clock this morning. It will deal with governmental problems and is expected to include recommendations from the Governor on avenues through which revenues may be provided.

He seeks a total of about $8,500,000 annually to finance the program he launched with his election as Governor.

SEEK APPROPRIATION FOR FIRE PROTECTION

Senators Hadley Brown, of Brunswick, and D. B. Warnell, of Pembroke, asked the senate to urge the house to embody in the appropriations bill an item to finance fire protection throughout the state.

Their resolution, referred to the senate finance committee, would authorize the assembly to appropriate to the division of forestry the equivalent of 1 cent for every acre of forest land in Georgia provided the appropriation did not exceed $75,000 for each of the next two years.

The senate was host yesterday to the first year law class of Dean Alton Hosh, of the University of Georgia. Professors Henry Shinn and Tom Green also accompanied the class.

The house passed a resolution calling on the President to expedite construction of the power and flood control dam on the Savannah river near Clark Hill. The resolution called the project an important one affecting the welfare of both Georgia and South Carolina. Copies were addressed to the President, Secretary Ickes, Frank McNinch, of the Federal Power Commission; Senators George and Russell, of Georgia; Byrnes and Smith, of South Carolina, and congressmen of both states.

The house adopted by voice vote a measure appropriating $16,500 interest payment to permit the Governor to borrow $2,181,000 to pay back salaries of school teachers.

The action follows Rivers' an-publichouse officials other than Governor and for congress, $300 for state senator and $250 for state representative.

The house adopted and immediately sent to the senate yesterday a joint resolution calling for a session of the house and senate at 11:30 a. m. on February 15 to hear Oscar Johnston, president of the National Cotton Council, speak on problems of cotton factors.

The resolution said radio station WSB would broadcast the address. Governor Rivers is to introduce Johnston.

The resolution pointed out that the south and Georgia are vitally interested in any plan to stimulate consumption of cotton, cottonseed and allied products, and that the National Cotton Council is composed of representatives of the cotton industry to work to this end.

Johnston is from Scott, Miss., and is one of the largest cotton growers in the United States. He is considered an outstanding authority on cotton problems.

Representative Charles L. Gowen, of Glynn county, had as a witness yesterday at the hearing, C. B. Gowen, of Brunswick. The elder Gowen, 68, was here for a meeting of the executive committee of the Georgia Aeronautical Association. He learned to fly when he was 63 years old and now has more than 450 hours of flying time to his credit.

Representative Grant, of Habersham, used an unorthodox method to gain the floor to record his vote on a question yesterday.

Instead of addressing the chair in the usual fashion, "Mr. Speaker," Grant shouted: "Hey!"

With a laugh, Speaker Harris recognized him, and the house applauded.

HEAD ASKS CHANGE IN INTANGIBLES LAW

Wants Ambiguities and Vague Language Eliminated by Rewriting Act.

Revenue Commission T. Grady Head asked the house ways and means committee yesterday to re-vamp the intangibles tax law to eliminate ambiguities and "vague language." A subcommittee was authorized to work with him on the revision.

Head appeared before the committee as it discussed fixing the situs of taxation of trust funds created by estates at the county of the creator's residence at death. The present law permits taxation of trust funds in the county where they are held and administered.

Sponsors of the change said under this small counties were losing taxes from intangibles and that Fulton county, where many of the trusts center as the state capital and state's largest city, gets the lion's share.

Head suggested that instead of preparing a separate bill to take care of this situation the entire intangibles bill be rewritten. He pointed out to the present conflict between the revenue department and the Board of Tax Appeals over whether stock of domesticated corporations shall be taxed. The Revenue Department contends such stock is taxable. The Board of Tax Appeals contends that it is not.

Chairman Henderson Lanham, of the house ways and means committee, was authorized to place Head's request in the hands of a subcommittee which will work out the revisions of the tax act with him.

announcement last week he planned to take this method of easing the school teacher salary crisis. There was no opposition.

House also adopted a resolution calling on 35 employees of the State Welfare Department for their place of birth, their residence before coming to Georgia, their present residence and their salaries. The resolution backs up a move by the economy committee which sought to learn if out-of-state people were employed by the department.

The senate passed a measure requiring a descriptive bill of sale with every purchase of livestock in Georgia. It was sent to the house for action.

The house passed 113 to 2 a bill providing for creation of a Georgia intra-coastal waterways commission.

The measure was sponsored by delegations from the Georgia tidewater counties. It is designed to facilitate the government's work on the intracoastal waterways in securing rights of way, easements and spoilage areas through condemnation and other proceedings.

Under the bill, the Governor is authorized to appoint a seven-member commission, one to be a resident of Bryan county, two of Chatham, one of Liberty, one of McIntosh, one of Camden and one of Glynn.

The Governor would be authorized to assign an assistant attorney general to aid the commission in its legal work. The commission could receive donations from counties and private individuals and use these funds for work in connection with the inland waterways.

The house passed by acclamation today a bill setting up rules for the taking of depositions in admiralty practice.

Another bill relating to stock running at large on the highways was offered by a group of legislators headed by Benning Grier, of Bibb county. It would prohibit the running at large on hard-surfaced public highways of any animals used for work or food. It would make permitting these animals roaming at large a misdemeanor punishable by $100 fine or 12 months on a public works camp.

Beautiful Figure Can't Last Without Work on Part of Possessor

After Reducing You Should Look Naturally Slim—

By Ida Jean Kain.

Are you inclined to think the women who are nice and slim are all just naturally that way? Then the first thing for you to do is to get over the idea that the beautiful figure is a five-for-life. It can't last without a little work on the part of the possessor.

You might be quite surprised, moreover, to find that some of the women who are the most streamlined have reduced from 50 to 60 pounds and have exercised as much as six inches off the hips. Here are three letters which should wake you up to the possibilities of your own figure.

The first sounds so good that you'll probably think I made it up, but it is from a hard-working reducer in St. Louis, Mo.: "I am delighted to tell you that I have followed the 21-day diet for six weeks and have lost exactly 22 pounds! At the beginning I weighed 132 pounds and now I weigh 110 pounds. I am five feet two inches tall. And do I ever look nice!"

"Why, I look like a million dollars in a dirndl dress—my waist is so tiny! I lost four inches off the waist, six off the hips and two off the bust. My measurements are now: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 26 inches; hips, 34 inches." Perhaps due to the omission of sweets, my complexion is much clearer. I want to say 'thank you' from the bottom of my heart."

Well, that letter proves the magic of exercise... imagine losing six inches off the hips with only 22 pounds' weight loss!

The next letter is from Dearborn, Mich., and it was made up, either: "I've reduced from 140 pounds to 119! And as a reward, my husband is giving me a new spring outfit and a trip to New York. It is nice to know he is so proud of my figure. I have been married five years and have two sons."

Any man is proud of a wife who keeps her figure—and more proud of one who has the courage to regain her figure after she has lost it. Our Dearborn reducer worked out a practical idea for menu planning which you will find useful. She kept a recipe file with the approximate number of calories in a serving. Then when she prepared a meal, its calorie value was right there before her.

Sons Disapprove Of Mother's Marriage

By Caroline Chatfield.

THINGS A HUSBAND CAN'T TAKE: Snoots, scoops, sniggers, carping, criticism, crying spells and sick headaches.

THINGS A WIFE CAN'T TAKE: Seeing her husband's dignity slowly dissolved in alcohol; his awareness of the same woman at every party; night work after office hours; the knowledge that he has an unshared secret; his silence.

Dear Miss Chatfield: When my husband died eight years ago he left the bulk of his estate to our seven sons and I got only a small portion. Since his death my mother who is old and feeble has made her home with me and is entirely dependent upon me in every way. And hereby hangs my tale. A few months ago my sister introduced me to a man of whom I saw a great deal with the result that at 2 o'clock one morning we were secretly married.

The boys are so furious about it that I haven't dared bring my husband home for fear of what they will do. They've gone so far as to forbid my sister to visit our mother because they blame her for my marriage. I married a poor man for love and happiness, not for money, yet it seems I am getting only sorrow out of it; for either I must stay here with my family, or leave mother and the boys and join my husband. I have never been so perplexed. Please give your opinion of my predicament.

MRS. G. S.

Answer: Aren't you seeing a lion in the way where there is no lion? If you have a home and income sufficient to support yourself and your mother there's no reason why you shouldn't show those big boys where to get off. After all, you are their mother, for which they owe you common consideration and since you aren't asking them for bed and board they have no right to say how you shall live, with whom or where.

The seven sons somewhat chesty over their inheritance are a big team to tackle but you should tell them without mincing words that if anybody leaves the family domicile it shall be they, not you, and after you have asserted yourself to this extent you may have the hardihood to move in the new husband who is unfortunately behind the eight ball anyway matters eventual.

It never ceases to surprise me how scared men and women can be of their own children when they are embarking on second romances. Fathers are afraid of their daughters, mothers of their sons to the point that they will slip and slide, go visiting under the cover of darkness, meet in secret places and when pushed too far they will elope like runaway youths and get married in the wee hours of the morning. Is it love that makes them so shy?

The Orchid Lady Will Epitomize Season's New Type of Beauty

By Lillian Mae.

"This season's belle may be a very self-sufficient, independent and practical sort of young woman, but she looks as fragile and ethereal as a hothouse orchid," according to a representative of an internationally noted creator of fashions in faces, who is in the city for a few days.

"Her skin is porcelain fair, like a china doll's; her eyes are orchid-shadowed; her cheeks are touched with a faint pinkish-mauve bloom, and her lips have the warmth and vibrancy of the deep red in the heart of an orchid," she continued.

Imagine! Leslie Howard Hasn't Read "G. W. T. W."

By Sheila Graham.

Jackie Cooper is now smoking a pipe... Bing Crosby was a little bit testy when told how to handle the baby in "East Side of Heaven." "I know all about babies," said Bing, who is the puppy of four.

"Yes," said the director, "but do babies know all about you?"... Clark Gable and Thomas Mitchell will be the only two important players in "Gone With the Wind" who will not have southern accents. Which reminds me, Leslie Howard, who plays Ashley, is telling friends that he has not yet read Margaret Mitchell's best-selling tome... All the "Dead End" kids, with the exception of Leo Gorcey, have homes in the valley. Gorcey abstains from rural life, because—as he puts it—"There are more girls in Hollywood." But I thought you were engaged to be married, Mr. Gorcey.

Norma Shearer's gift of $15,000 to the President's pet charity—the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—was the happy inspiration of her new press agent, Russell Birdwell. Now that Russell has Miss Shearer in tow, he is prepared for some more noble actions that should turn popular favor in her direction. Norma and seven other film stars pay Mr. Birdwell a minimum of $500 a week to have themselves presented favorably in newspapers, magazines and on the air. Among them are Carole Lombard, for whom Russell garnered more publicity than for any other actress in a year when she made Wallace Beery is supposed to be very difficult on the set, and everyone expected fireworks when Joseph Von Sternberg was assigned to direct "Sergeant Madden," but the couple of temperamentals are getting on fine. "How do you do it?" I asked Von Sternberg. "I went for a ride in his plane," grinned the director. (The quickest retort to the Beery heart.)... Jimmy Cagney, who is always unwilling to return to Hollywood from his Martha's Vineyard farm, refuses to admit that he returned for a picture. "I had to come back to look after my two goats," he says somberly.

Rosalind Russell is now going places with Billy Selwyn, nephew of Edgar and Arch... Mickey Rooney, the best jitterbug on the Metro lot, has challenged all and sundry to a jitterbug contest... Charlie Farrell is building an ice rink at Palm Springs—of all places... "This is a triple-threat role," Maxie Rosenbloom tells me, discussing his next picture, "I'm a thespian, a convict, a killer, and a comedian." "That's a quadruple role," I correct him gently. "Sure," says Maxie, "but I can't say that word."

Playing by the Rule of Eleven

By Harold Sharpsteen.

When defender's opening lead is fourth best, the total number of cards of the suit outstanding that are higher than the card led, is determined by subtracting the denomination of the led-card from eleven.

Example: West leads the spade 7, his fourth highest spade. Seven from 11 leaves four... the remaining four higher spades are held by North, East and South.

By applying this simple rule, the expert is often able to make deductions that appear uncanny to players of less experience. Witness the following deal:

North. S-9 4 2 H-8 8 D-K J 4 C-A Q 10 7 3 East. S-K 6 5 H-Q J 10 5 3 H-A 6 4 2 D-8 6 5 3 C-8 6 5 2 South. S-A J 8 H-K 7 D-A 10 9 7 2 C-J 9 4

REVEALS FOUR SPADES. West opens the Spade 3 against South's three trump contract, revealing West holds three higher spades. Noting dummy's Spade 2,

MY DAY Remembering Details Asset to Business

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON.—I left Hyde Park early this morning and found, on arriving in New York city that, in spite of rather cloudy skies, the 11:30 plane would fly to Washington. I caught it very comfortably, and reached the White House in time for lunch.

This trip was as smooth and peaceful as my last one was stormy. We landed at the regular airport on time, and no one could have suffered a qualm. I was the only woman on board but, as fellow passengers, I found two friends of the administration whom I had never seen before. One of them is a consulting engineer, who seems to feel that the administration has not been as bad for the businessman as some of our friends would lead us to believe. The other is an official in a firm which does the finishing on automobile bodies.

It is always such a surprise to me when I find that any official in a great business knows about some small detail. In this case, I found that the gentlemen knew how an automobile which I had bought some time ago, was finished on the inside. Perhaps an ability to remember little things is one of the requisites of a successful businessman.

I see by one of the papers that General Franco has announced that he will consider no peace negotiations, only complete surrender. That seems a strange attitude to take toward your countrymen. One would think that, in a case of this kind, the greatest possible generosity would be indicated. The Spaniards have never lacked courage nor dignity, but I should have thought they were a people who would respond to generosity more quickly than to vindictiveness. Perhaps, however, this settlement does not lie between the two opposing groups of Spaniards. Possibly the peace negotiations will have to take into account, on one side at least, the wishes of certain gentlemen who do not live in Spain.

Evidently the experiences of one country mean little to any other country. At the end of our Civil War, General Grant demanded unconditional surrender and, while he did return General Lee's sword, and did see that the Confederate soldiers received their horses back, so that they could take them home for the spring plowing, still the victors pursued their victory with vindictiveness. We would have been a united nation far sooner if this attitude had been different. As it was, we remained a disunited people until 1898, and much hardship that could have been avoided was inflicted on a part of our population.

On the way down this morning, I read a manuscript sent me from the western coast. It tells the story of a man who was a glorious hero to his people, and drove them on to a war which in the end brought death and devastation, not only to his enemies, but to his own people. I wish that those who are belligerent today could realize that all wars eventually act as boomerangs, and the victor suffers as much as the vanquished.

Fat Handicaps Work of Heart

By Dr. William Brady.

Post-mortem examination—you heart increases in proportion with the weight of the body when an adult takes on excess weight, but the proportionate increase is slightly greater for males than for females.

The excessive deposit of fat just beneath the smooth membrane covering the heart, and the penetration of fat between muscle bundles and muscle fibers impair heart function by interfering with contraction and relaxation of muscle and with the nutrition of the heart muscle. Then, too, the heart in the overweight individual has to do increased work to supply blood to the superfluous body tissue, the slacker flesh. Hence the shortness of breath of the overweight individual on moderate exertion. And hence the comparatively poor chance of such a patient to withstand any illness which taxes the reserve power of the heart, say pneumonia.

An alternative for the periodic physical examination for the overweight adult is to try to run a mile at jog trot. If you can do it, it is safe to put off the health examination another year.

In nine cases there had been varying degrees of cardiac insufficiency or functional weakness although there was no demonstrable lesion discovered in the necropsy. In 60 cases the overweight had been associated with high tension (high blood pressure). In nine of these subjects coronary sclerosis was found—that is hardening of the arteries of the heart wall; in two cirrhosis of the liver; in one aortitis (disease of the great artery), in one dilated and hypertrophied (enlarged) heart.

An increase in the amount of fat in and around the heart was found in 129 of these overweight subjects. In all instances more fat was deposited in the wall of the right ventricle than in the left. The right ventricle, as most readers will not remember, pumps the blood that has come back from the lungs to the left auricle and through the well known mitral valve into the left ventricle, which pumps it out through the great artery (aorta)—and if you can't follow it on its course from there, consult any physiology.

Pathologist Harry L. Smith recorded the weights of a thousand normal hearts of normal, if somewhat lifeless, adults of normal average weight and stature, and found that the average weight of the adult male heart is 294 grams, and of the adult female heart 250 grams. In avoidance that would be approximately 10 ounces for the male heart and 9 ounces for the female. The weight of the shaggy chrysanthemum design—the color combination I liked best has dusty lavender pink flowers on white ground with dull green for leaves, but there are many others colors in the same pattern. Another sample has a deep blue ground with big bouquets of old-fashioned flowers and white shells. This is called "Queen Anne Shell." A linen that seems friendly and usable to me has an oak leaf design—it's available in many autumnal shades of blue grading to quite a dark blue. A cheery chintz is an intricate new stripe based on Persian motifs. Another unpretentious, but versatile pattern is called "Turkey Berries," with sprays of green leaves and red berries. Quaint and pretty is a fern and flower garland tied with a ribbon bow. A scenic that will go places is "Robbie Hood," and for boys, big and little, there are some salty sailor design chintzes. And many, many more than I've space to talk about here.

But watch the drapery counters for signs of spring—remembering that most all this spring crop of fabrics, even the inexpensive ones, will be washable, color-fast, pre-shrunk and all of that. That means chintzes too—they'll hold their glaze and crispness. What's more—these fabrics will carry a bonded guarantee which will mean a refund of the labor-cost of making them up as well as the amount you're out for yardage, should the fabric shrink, fade or otherwise lose its good looks with washing. That ought to be convincing.

Here's the charming new apron-skirt in a small three-in-one design (1935-B) that practically gives you a basic wardrobe in itself. The dress alone is a classic, kimono-sleeved style, with lifted waistline and slim skirt; you'll enjoy having a whole series like this, for home, office or general run-around. Add the bolero and the flaring apron-skirt to formalize it into a charming outfit for afternoon and general wear. Can you imagine a more useful, economical fashion than this?

The nice thing about 1935-B, of course, is that you work it out in your favorite fabric and color contrasts—thin wool with silk print or taffeta, plain flat crepe with printed, navy or black flat crepe with high shade.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1935-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Corresponding bust measurements: 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 (34) requires 3 3/8 yards of 39-inch material for the dress; 1 1/4 yards for the bolero; 2 1/4 yards for the apron-skirt.

Price of pattern, 15 cents. Price of pattern book, 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Seminary's Superlative Students Will Participate in May Court

By Sally Forth.

CREATING wide interest among members of the high school contingent today is the announcement of the selection of a group of belles who will appear in Washington Seminary's colorful May Court.

The court, as you know, is held annually on the campus during the month of May, and is comprised of a number of the Seminary's outstanding students. Society assembles en masse to witness the beautiful ceremony and to compliment the participants on their dainty pastel gowns.

Of equal importance today is the announcement of the Seminary's most representative students, whose names and photographs will appear in the school yearbook, "Facts and Fancies." Sally was interested to observe that many of those who will appear in the May Court also received superlative honors!

Caroline Yundt is one of these, having been chosen May Queen, in addition to being named the Seminary's most skilled athlete. The popular belle is captain of the basketball team and president of the "A" Club, an organization based on "points" in athletics.

Caroline's maid of honor in the May Court will be Carol See, another attractive member of the senior class.

Mary Frances Broach received the signal honor of being chosen "Spirit of the Seminary," a title symbolic of the ideal Seminary student. Mary Frances, who will be a maid in the May Court, is a prominent player on the basketball team and is assistant manager of the school yearbook.

Mary Clapp, another maid, was named "Courtney" in the superlative student election. Mary is the able business manager of the yearbook and is past president of the Dramatic Club.

Elsie Dunning typifies the "Spirit of Leadership" at the Seminary and is the popular senior class president. She will appear as a maid in the May Court.

Emily Martin, editor-in-chief of the "Missesma," and maid in the court, was awarded the title of "Versatility" in the superlative contest.

Classmates were baffled when asked to choose between Mary Lucille Proctor and Lillian Roberts for the title of "Dependability." So, they solved the problem by awarding the title jointly to the two girls! The former is president of the Travel Club and vice president of the senior class, and the latter is business manager of the "Missesma."

Patricia Stoghill bears the coveted "Scholarship" title. Patricia, you know, was Junior Red Cross director at the Seminary for two years, and upon one occasion represented the school at the California convention of the Red Cross.

The talented Glee Club president, Margery Branch, holds the Seminary's "Musical" title, while Sally Cobb Johnson, president of the Art Club, was chosen most "Artistic."

Junior League Clinic To Prepare Exhibit for Medical Association

The thyroid clinic of the Atlanta Junior League has received the signal honor of being asked to prepare an exhibit for the national meeting of the American Medical Association to be held in St. Louis in June. This announcement was made by Mrs. Augustus Loyless, chairman of the thyroid clinic at the meeting of the Atlanta Junior League held yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The nominating committee to prepare the slate for next year's officers was chosen. Mrs. Cooper appointed Mrs. Wright Bryan chairman, and Mrs. S. Augustus Black, other members of the committee, elected by the League, were Mrs. Murdock Ecken, Mrs. Robert L. Foreman Jr., and Mrs. Clark Howell. A straw ballot was taken for nominations for president.

Mrs. Cooper announced that the national conference of the Junior League of America would be held in Memphis, Tenn., from May 2 to 5. This date being several weeks in advance of the usual time for holding the meeting necessitates a change in election plans. The incoming president of the Atlanta League serves as one of the delegates to the conference. Therefore, election of new officers will be held in March instead of April.

The meeting was featured by an informal panel discussion of the work of the Parent Guidance Service maintained by the League at the Family Welfare Society. Miss Mary Thomasson, the trained psychiatric worker, led the open forum which was entered into by those members of the League most closely associated with the project. Mesdames Reginald Fleet, Lawrence Willet, R. L. Foreman, William Huger, Joel Hunter and Robert Hogg.

Mrs. William Minnich, placement chairman, announced that at the check-up made on January 1 almost all active members were more than adequately fulfilling their jobs. There are 20 girls working on the art and interests committee; 30 on children's plays, 15 members of the Scribblers' Club; Newsheet 12; Eggleston hospital, 30; marionettes, 16; thyroid clinic, 24; speech school, 24; welfare, 114.

Mrs. Oliver Healey reported that the new lighting system used by the marionettes has been very successful and that the performances of the vaudeville show had been enthusiastically received in the six schools in which they have been given.

LOVE COMES LAST

Bartlett Ford, N. Y. Advertising Man Offers Andy an Executive Position

By JULIA ANNE MOORE.

INSTALLMENT II.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE: Life had been very kind to her, Laura Wiley thinks, especially the last two years since Andy Cooper came into it. She likes her work as announcer at BRY and her salary, with her earnings from writing fiction, have enabled her to take care of her younger sister Nina, now 21, who is rebellious because heart trouble has her from many of the activities of boys and girls of her age. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY:

The liverwurst disappeared and the handkerchief came into play again. "Dishwashing was a job for menials—and women."

"How quaint."

"I never thought so."

Laura banged her fist on the table. "Will you two stop talking nonsense and get busy?"

Andy feigned a nervous eagerness to be of service, but Nina said, "You're going to make some unfortunate woman a completely helpless husband, Andy."

"Some women," said Andy, depositing the covered dish of assorted meats in the refrigerator, "prefer the helpless type."

"Name one."

"Well—there's Laurie."

Laura laughed, but Nina said soberly, "That's where you're wrong. I can't imagine Laura married to any man—but if she should decide to encumber her life, the gent would have to be one of these triple-threat husbands; a good provider, a genial playmate and a capable housekeeper."

Andy turned and looked across the room at Laura who, at the moment, was staring at her sister, curiously. Did Nina really believe what she had said? Was it possible she had not discovered what their friends had known for months, that her sister and Andy Cooper were completely in love with each other?

The same questions posed themselves in both Laura's and Andy's minds. And, unobserved by Nina, their eyes met and something reassuring passed between them.

They were in the car, threading their way through downtown traffic when Laura reminded Andy: "You had something to tell me, didn't you?"

"About Bartlett Ford, you mean?" Andy said. "I told you about all this to tell, I think. His wire said he was arriving in Newbury sometime tonight and would like me to have lunch with him tomorrow."

Laura looked up at Andy's irregular profile. He was no poker-face, this big, quiet man she loved. The eagerness with which he was looking forward to that luncheon was too evident to mistake.

She was about to speak when Nina asked brightly, "Is this something I should know about? Just who is Bartlett Ford?" Andy explained and Nina said, "O big shot, in other words. Swell! No chance of that luncheon turning into a little business conference, I suppose?"

Andy grinned. "If it doesn't," he said, "Andy Cooper, president, general manager, selling force and copy writer of Cooper's Advertising Service, is going to be a badly disappointed young man."

Then, he said, unsimiling, "As a matter of fact, I'm prepared to have him take me up on a proposition I made him when I met him on the coast last fall."

Laura's eyes were on the road ahead and she did not look at him when she asked, apprehensively, "What was the proposition, Andy?"

"That he take over my outfit, expand and put me in charge."

"Marvelous!" This from Nina, with genuine enthusiasm.

"Wouldn't that put you in line for something in his New York organization?"

Andy nodded, said with quickening interest, "In the first place, it would identify me with the biggest advertising concern in the country, bar none. You'd have to be in the racket to know what the name Bartlett Ford means. He has been on the best brains in the business."

"Then, as you say, Nina, it would open up a new field of opportunity, a chance to really amount to something, make a name for myself. And, finally—" he glanced at Laura—"it would mean a decent income from the very start, with plenty of opportunity to build it up to an impressive figure."

Impressive, certainly, was this summary of possibilities to Nina. Out of sheer sympathy, she cried, "Oh, Andy, if you can put it over!"

Andy grinned his appreciation. "And I think I can," he said, expansively. "I'm going to give Ford all I've got, anyway."

"Of course you are." Unbounded admiration was in Nina's blue eyes. "And dollars to doughnuts you'll click."

Listening, Laura knew that she was momentarily forgotten. This was the sort of thing Andy required. He needed some one to go along with him in his dreams, approving, cheering him on.

Nina fed his ego and his self-confidence expanded. She gave him that for which he so often turned to Laura—and was so often denied because Laura was incapable of applauding anything which she saw as unwise in the circumstances in which it was proposed.

Not until Andy came out of the bath house at the lake did it occur to Andy that Laura had had no part in their exciting conversation. Halfway down the sandy beach he saw Nina racing for the water, shouting a challenge as she ran. He called to her:

"Run along out to the first float and stay there until I come!"

She was swimming then, slipping through the water with the easy grace of a dolphin, no longer looking at him.

Laura came down the beach, slim and white and lovely in her new swimming suit. Her eyes searched the water's edge.

"Where's Nina?"

Andy pointed. "I told her to stay at the first float until we came out. She'll be all right." He slipped his arm through hers and moved up the beach. "I want to talk to you, young woman."

They halted and Laura sank to the ground and ran her fingers through the warm sand. After a moment Andy dropped beside her. He said, abruptly, "You set up like the Bartlett Ford setup, Laurie. Why not?"

Laura's grave blue eyes followed the tracery of her fingers on the sand. "You'd be much happier if I agreed it was a superb idea, wouldn't you, Andy?"

"I want to know what you think about it, good or bad."

She met his gaze, unwaveringly. "I don't like it, Andy."

"Of course you don't—but why not?"

"Because going in with Bartlett Ford would mean losing your own identity. You've worked hard to build up the Cooper Advertising Service. You began with nothing and today you have some really important accounts and the prospect of others. In a few years, in your field, you could be as important a person as Bartlett Ford is in his. That to me, Andy, is the greater opportunity."

"Is that your case?" Andy asked, crisply. "Now I want you to know why I'd welcome a chance to tie in with Ford, Laurie, because nothing means anything to me if it isn't what you want. Do you believe that?"

She did believe it. That was what made it so difficult to oppose him. "Yes, Andy," she said, gently, "I believe it."

"But you think I would be showing poor judgment to sell out to Ford with the understanding that I would continue to run the business, under his name, with his prestige and his money?"

"Yes."

Andy swung around, facing her. "Tell me something, Laurie. For almost two years you've been announcing at BRY, the only unfledged woman announcer on the Eastern network. You've made a fair living, you've found time to write a little pleasant fiction on the side and as both a radio personality and a writer you've made Laura Wiley a familiar name to several thousand of persons. Now suppose an executive of one of the big chains came to you tomorrow and offered you a spot on a nation hookup at several times the maximum figure you can ever make in Newbury. Would you turn it down?"

Laura smiled. He had missed the point of her objection entirely. "Do you consider that a parallel case?"

"Near enough," Andy said. "I'm sorry, darling, but I can't agree. In my present frame of mind I would definitely refuse such an offer—but for very different reasons than I would suggest in urging you to reject an offer from Bartlett Ford."

She lay back on the sand and locked her fingers under her head. "Surely you've discovered by now that for me the simple life is the most satisfying. Andy. Nothing could coax me away from my own pleasant little niche just now. These last two years have given me all I've wanted—much more than I've deserved, I'm afraid."

Andy stared down at her upturned face. They've really given you all you've wanted, Laurie?"

She divined the thought behind his question. "Everything, Andy—including you and all that you've added to my life."

"And you'd be content to go on like this, indefinitely?" He leaned over her. "There's more to love than just seeing each other, Laurie."

Her eyes closed against the pleading quality in his own. "I know, darling, but—"

"That but?" Andy said with impatience. "It's like a wall between us. You love me, but you can't marry me. You would marry me, but you must look after Nina, pay off the loan you made to put her through college. I've told you time and again I would gladly assume those obligations."

"Laura's sicken lashes came up. 'We must quarrel, Andy,' she said, softly. Then her eyes closed again and she said, 'I've tried so hard to make you understand about Nina.'"

"And you've succeeded." His voice was brittle. "I do understand about Nina. But what about us?"

"What I have done and am doing for Nina," Laura said, "is out of love..."

"Do you think I don't realize that?"
